An Adopted Pet Child
The Hideous Coverlet
"Piker" Profiteering

Penrose is Pennsylvania's Republican ruler. Knox, once Secretary of State, is Pennsylvania's pet child, so Penrose says, and he has the political right to name the pet child.

When Pennsylvania voted recently with no names printed on the tickets, those that wrote the name of Hiram Johnson for President were double those that wrote the name of Knox. It looks as though Pennsylvania were inclined to adopt a favorite child.

Teufelsdroeckh, in Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus" looking down on the sleeping city from his watch tower said:

"Oh, under that hideous coverlet of vapors, and putrefactions, and unimaginable gases, what a fermenting-vat lies simmering and bid. The joyful and the sorrowful are there. Men are being born; on the other side of a brick partition, men are cursing; and around them all is the vast, void night—in the condemned cells, the pulse of life beats tremulous and faint, and bloodshot eyes looking out through the darkness, which is around and within, for the light of a stern last morning. Six men are to be hanged on the morrow; comes no hammering from the Rabenstein?"

If Teufelsdroeckh, could lift the "hideous coverlet" that hides the inside of Sing Sing prison he would see in the Death House, three men waiting to be killed by electricity, on the day after tomorrow. Two in the Death House are dying of tuberculosis.

Civilized government with a few thousand volts will get ahead of the tubercle bacilli.

Two of the three condemned have never seen a visitor since they entered the Death House. One, Walter Levandowski, asks as a special favor that he be killed tomorrow. Wednesday, one day early, because tomorrow will be his twenty-sixth birthday. The warden cannot oblige him. It is easier to kill three at a time.

In your effort to understand the strangest thing, human nature, how would you explain Levandowski? Because he has no visitors in his death cell, he asks to be killed a day ahead and make sure that on his birthday two visitors will come, the electrician and death.

Samuel Gompers was opposed to any political labor party. Now, in the American Federationist, official organ of labor, he declares that Congress must be overthrown by labor's votes because of its failure to legislate for the people. It is an important announcement.

He mentions twenty-one great corporations that have profiteered, to the tune of four hundred and thirty-five per cent., which means that each year they have earned more than four times their entire value.

To talk of landlord profiteering. Suppose a landlord owning a house worth $100,000 charged $435,000 a year rent? He would then be making as much on his property as the profiteer corporations average on theirs.

You can boil down the high cost of living proposition into few words, "The middle men steal too much."

Railroad Brotherhoods, in their official report, show that a barrel of flour, for which a workman paid $14.50 in 1917, cost $8.50 after charging against it not only what the farmer got, freight, interest and all the expenses of the miller.

When a farmer gets $2.50 for a bushel of wheat and somebody else gets $5 for rolling out the barrel of flour, there is something wrong. Intelligent government, if it would take its mind off Armenia and Mesopotamia for half an hour, could do somthing to remedy the situation.

Greeks are occupying Thrace, the country that produced the mother of Themistocles. No wonder the Greeks want it. Bulgarians and Turks that lived there, peasants that have worked the soil for generations, are turned out and block the roads with their ox-carts.

In these days of possessing and dispossessing, remarking boundary lines and setting up of landmarks, it would be well for statesmen of Washington and Europe to read again Guizot's "History of Civilization" and see what always happens when too many little nations try to live side by side.

Or statesmen might avoid reading Guizot's heavy style by putting fourteen small spiders in a bottle, returning at the end of forty-eight hours to find one fat spider and thirteen dead ones.

'ADVISED TO TAKE REVENGE'

Rabbi Declares Miss Zimmerman Was Told to Shoot Doctor Like a Dog

Springfield, May 25.—Rabbi Samuel Rapaport, head of the Orthodox Jewish Church of Springfield, an eleventh hour witness called by the government in the murder trial of Jennie Zimmerman, testified the girl had told him she had been advised "to take her revenge upon the doctor and shoot him like a dog."

The rabbi was bitterly arraigned by Attorney McKechnie in cross-examination for what the defence lawyer termed "violation of spiritual confidence."

GIRL CALLED HIM.

"I was called to see Jennie at her own request," testified the rabbi. "I asked her how the shooting had happened and she said she did not know how it had happened. I asked her why she had not come to me with her troubles before the shooting. She said she had talked with some women and they advised her not to go to the rabbi but to take her own revenge and shoot him like a dog. After this Jennie fainted."

Asked by the defence if his testimony was not a violation of spiritual confidence, the rabbi replied that he thought everyone knew of the shooting and believed that she wished to make a confession to him.

Attorney McKechnie laid great

KID McCOY UNDER ARREST IN NEW YORK

New York, May 25.—Norman J. He was charged with disorderly conduct.

Selby was arrested on complaint of the managers, who allege he came in the premises with a friend shortly after midnight and used abusive language. Selby was ordered out, but refused to leave, and, according to the complainants, picked up a chair and threw it across the room.

He also was charged with using improper language in the presence of women. Many patrons fled the place.

ASKS REMOVAL OF FOOD BOARD

Representative Niland Also Calls for Embargo on Essentials to Life

Six resolutions attacking the high cost of living were introduced in the House of Representatives today by Representative Thomas A. Niland of East Boston.

They call for public hearings in the State House auditorium to which the public shall be invited, removal of the members of the Necessaries of Life Commission because of alleged failure to reduce living costs, and appointment of members of the working class to the commission.

They also ask Congress to declare an embargo for a year on the export of food, fuel and clothing, and memorialize Congress not to grant increase in freight rates.

Congress is asked to declare for public ownership of the entire railroad system "so that unearned dividends may not be wrung from the American masses."

"In addition he would have the Massachusetts House of Representatives compliment Senator Walsh and Congressman Dallinger and Tinkham for the part they have made "against the rapacity of trusts and corporations that control food and fuel."

ROBBERS FOILED BY WOMAN

Abandon Their Attack on Wrentham National Bank and Flee Empty-Handed

Wrentham, May 25.—Bank robbers bent on entering the Wrentham National Bank were frustrated today after they had smashed through the outer door of the establishment.

The burglar alarm bell outside the building awakened Mrs. Florence Weaver, who notified Chief Michaud of the local police. The robbers were frightened off.

The men then broke into Bell's blacksmith shop, where they stole implements with which to force an entrance into the bank. With a sledge hammer and chisel they attacked the outer door. This was forced through and the men were at work on the grilled door leading into the cage when the alarm went off.

Mrs. Weaver said she did not see an automobile nor did she see any men running away after the alarm. Chief Michaud found the sledge and chisel where the men had dropped them in their flight.

Finger print experts from Boston arrived before noon to make an investigation of the attempted robbery. They are hopeful that on some of the tools, or possibly the doors, tell-tale signs will be found leading to the detection of the band. Pinkerton operatives are on the hunt for the men.

VANZETTI HELD IN $12,000 IN HUNT FOR ROBBERS

Brockton, May 25.—Bert Vanzetti was held in $12,000 for the Grand Jury today when arraigned on charges of assault with intent to rob. The charge grew out of the raid on the L. Q. Faces 40 Charges of Stealing Funds

WILLIAM F. STONE.

Smartly dressed and seemingly unmoved by the serious charges against him, William F. Stone, treasurer of the Embossagraph Products Company of Boston and Salem, was arraigned in the Superior Court today, charged in forty counts with the larceny and conversion of funds of his company and other firms amounting to $127,154.17.

Stone pleaded not guilty to all counts on three indictments charging conspiracy and larceny, and was held in $25,000 bail, which he was unable to furnish. He appeared without counsel.

Stone was brought back from New York, where he fled after the company declared itself bankrupt, by Inspector Silas Waite following extradition proceedings. His alleged confederate, Grace Tippett, who is charged with conspiracy in connection with his case, is out on $2,000 bail. Eldridge A. Anderson, attorney for the Embossagraph Company, appeared as complainant.

Stone was arrested May 11 on an indictment warrant, charging the larceny of $25,000 from his company. Later a grand jury blanket warrant charged him as follows: larceny and conversion in thirty-three counts of $43,012.61, of the funds of the Embossagraph Products Company, July 21, 1919, to January 27, 1920; larceny of $21,322.37 from the Industrial Finance Company, No. 19 State street, January 12; $24,653.25 from the Massachusetts Trust Company, No. 55 Federal street, January 21; $26,641.31 from the Federal Finance Company, No. 19 State street, January 27; $11,500 from the N. CAMPAIGN FUNDS REVEALED

Hoover 'Manager' Tells How Contest Was Operated and Financed

By International News Service.

Washington, May 25.—To the Hoover National Republican Club, the national organization of the presidential campaign of Herbert Hoover, there has been contributed a total of $62,155.76.

John F. Lucey of New York, one of Hoover's campaign managers, testified to this fact today before the Senate committee investigating pre-convention presidential campaign expenditures and contributions.

Contributions to the national organization have been exclusive of those received by the Hoover "clubs" in the various States, Lucey explained.

No contributions have been received by the national organization from any corporation, Lucey declared, and none has been above $1,000.

Lucey presented a typewritten statement of the national organization's receipts and expenditures he said was prepared by Thompson & Black, financial accountants, New York City.

The statement gave as a total of expenditures $66,332.87; a deficit of $4,147.11; "money borrowed to meet current bills" $14,000, and a cash balance of $9,747.71.

The largest disbursements given were a contribution to the Republican national convention committee of $2,000 and another to the State of Washington Hoover Club of $2,000.

For the preparation, printing and mailing of Hoover campaign literature the cost was fixed at $30,032.76, and the salaries of those connected with the Eisenhoffer, who was employed by a Boston contracting firm, engaged in making repairs to the hydro-electric power plant, was kneeling in front of a piece of apparatus on which he was working. He carelessly raised his head, which struck the wire, heavily charged with electricity.

Pain Is Not Personal Injury, Says Court

"Pain is not disease, nor is disease resulting in pain a personal injury," says the full bench in overruling a decree of the Industrial Accident Board ordering the Employers' Liability Assurance Company to pay Moses Pimental $14 a week until further order.

Pimental, a cigarmaker, worked at his trade for fourteen years until May 2, 1919, when he was obliged to give up. His trouble was diagnosed as "occupational neurosis."

The accident board found that the muscular action in rolling cigars precipitated a neuralgic pain and brought on the injury which incapacitated the man.

Quit Trying Political Pull or the Axe May Fall, Sullivan Says in Orders

Employes of the public works department who attempt to get promotions or transfers through political pull will be suspended or discharged, according to an order of Public Works Commissioner Thomas F. Sullivan, made public today, which affects more than 3,000 employes.

Commissioner Sullivan says he has been so pestered by politicians seeking the advancement of a friend that he has sought in order to give proper time to his work.

Hereafter any request for promotion or transfer will be refused, regardless of its merits, that does not emanate from the person deserving consideration, through his immediate superior, in the form of a written request stating briefly the reasons therefor," says his order.

Violation of this order will be considered sufficient cause for suspension or discharge."

FIRE FAILS TO HIDE CRIME

John Cunniff's Body Found in Ruins of Wagon Shed That Was Burned

John Cunniff, whose body was found in the ruins of a wagon shed destroyed by fire in West Newton, was murdered and robbed, and the blaze started to conceal the crime, Chief of Police Mitchell declared today.

Nicholas Caruso, thirty-eight years old, of Webster street, West Newton, who is alleged to have quarrelled with Cunniff Saturday night, and who was said to have been seen in the vicinity of the shed shortly before the fire was held in the Newton Court on a technical charge on suspicion of having had some connection with the affair.

According to Chief Mitchell, the dead man was known to have had $400 pinned to his shirt, no trace of which was found.

An autopsy was held in the Newton Hospital today by Associate Medical Examiner T. Morton Gallagher, to determine the cause of Cunniff's death.

FIREMEN FIND BODY.

The man's charred body was found by firemen in the ruins of the shed which adjoined the barn of James Gallagher of No. 168 River street, West Newton. Cunniff was employed by Gallagher and slept in the shed, which it was at first thought he accidentally had fired by falling asleep while smoking.

Later it was stated that the dead man, who was 63 years old, had been engaged in an altercation with Caruso, also employed by Gallagher. The police learned that Caruso left the place Monday morning, going to Boston, where he was said to have obtained liquor and to have become intoxicated.

CARUSO IS ARRESTED.

At 12:40 today Caruso was seen within 200 yards of the Gallagher barn, a short time before the fire was discovered. An hour or two later the man was arrested while walking the Boston & Albany railroad tracks near the Newton line. He was arraigned in Newton Court on the charge of track walking and held in $500 for a hearing on Thursday.

In the meantime District Attorney Tufts of Middlesex County was notified and hurried to Newton to make a personal investigation.

Chief Mitchell stated that the body of Cunniff was badly burned, but that the portion of his shirt to which the $400 had been pinned was not consumed. The money was missing, however, and no trace of burned banknotes could be found.

Caruso had no money on his person when arrested.

Following the start from Boston late yesterday, they arrived here before dark, spending the night in company with Howard H. Terhune, a brother of the pilot. Terhune was a naval aviator during the war.

MAHONY SHOWS U. S. HAS ALWAYS AIDED SMALL NATIONS

By THOMAS H. MAHONY.

In the letter of Secretary of State Colby to Chairman Porter of the Foreign Relations Committee relative to the Mason resolution on Ireland appears the following:

"There are no facts in connection with our foreign relations which should deter your committee from any action which is dictated by good judgment, and which it may feel conscientiously impelled to take."

NO FEAR OF WAR.

In this brief statement Secretary Colby makes it clear beyond peradventure that there is nothing in international law, and nothing in our relations with England to prevent Congress from appropriating money to defray the expenses of a minister and consuls to the Republic of Ireland; that there is no reason why the passage of this resolution by Congress should involve this country in any war with England. Most timely and effective is this answer, not only to Chairman Porter but also to others who, in expensive advertisements, have blazoned before the public the statement that if the Mason resolution was passed by Congress Sir Auckland Geddes would leave this country and inevitably war would follow.

Mr. Colby has but followed in the footsteps of other Secretaries of State notably John Quincy Adams, Daniel Webster and William H. Seward. He has reiterated the doctrine laid down by Thomas Jefferson, and insisted upon by these former Secretaries of States, that recognition does not involve intervention. Jefferson said: "How can we consistently refuse to recognize people who ask to establish our form of government?" Again, laying down in its bold and definite terms the above mentioned policy, he stated as early as 1792:

"It agrees with our policy to acknowledge any government which is formed by the will of the nation, substantially declared."

IRELAND'S WILL EXPRESSED.

Was ever the will of any nation so substantially declared as was that of Ireland in the plebiscite of December, 1918, when more than 75 per cent. of the people voted against the continuance of British rule? Clearly then the one element necessary to justify Jefferson in going so far as to recognize the Irish republic is present. What would justify Jefferson, justifies the American of the present day.

America reserves the right to extend to any and all nations its best wishes, but at the same time insists upon the right of non-intervention. The Act of Recognition is not a declaration of war against any nation.

In 1823 Daniel Webster offered a resolution with reference to Greece in that nation's struggle for freedom from Turkey, very similar to the Mason resolution and one of its proposed substitutes.

In 1818 Henry Clay introduced a similar resolution for the recognition of Buenos Aires.

SEWARD'S PRECEDENTS.

William H. Seward, dealing with the Hungarian matter when confronted with its statement that Russia might take offence at our entertainment of Kossuth, declared:

"You say that our friendship to Kossuth might lead Russia to take offence. Is America then brought so low that she fears to give offence to laws of nature and of nations?"

any nation when commanded by the

Seward probably knew England better than any man of his time.

Seward, in discussing the Irish revolution of 1848 under Smith O'Brien, said: "Never on earth was a revolution more just or necessary." Again he said: "For less than the least of all the wrongs of which Ireland complains, America rebelled."

Seward offered a resolution in Congress to the end that England be requested to release Smith O'Brien from prison. He was met by the statement that it was a domestic question of England's and England might be offended. His answer was the following:

CANNOT USE FORCE.

"It is true that we may not intervene in the affairs of any government for unjust purposes, nor can we intervene by force for even just purposes. But this is only restraint imposed on us by the law of nations. . . . What if England should take offence. . . . Why then England would be in the wrong and we are in the right. The time has passed when this country can be alarmed by fear of war in such a case."

It is to be remembered also that the United States went far beyond this in the Cuban situation, far beyond anything that Ireland has ever requested of this country.

Secretary Colby has settled for all time the question of the Mason resolution interfering with our relations to England.

In aligning himself with Jefferson, Quincy Adams, Clay, Webster and Seward he is indeed in good American company.

RABBI CALLED IN DEATH CASE

Says Miss Zimmerman Told Him She Was Advised to Shoot Doctor

stress on Jennie's fainting at the conclusion of this interview. "Was it not," he asked the rabbi, "because you painted a bloody picture of the doctor's body, describing the gaping wounds and the blood streaming from them?"

The rabbi denied that he had painted any such word picture to the girl. He also denied that Rabbi Friedman of Utica, N. Y., who had been cantor in Springfield, and was present at the interview, had taken notes of the conversation between the girl and rabbi.

The shooting of Dr. Zimmerman was the act of a jealous and emotional woman," said Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, a Boston alienist, in testifying for the prosecution.

Dr. Briggs further testified that Miss Zimmerman was sane at the time she killed the doctor. He based his opinion upon the testimony in the case and observation of the defendant in court. "No evidence has been presented," he testified, "to show that Miss Zimmerman had a mental disease from the time of her relations with her cousin to the time of the shooting."

JEALOUSY CLAIMED.

"There was nothing in her behavior either prior to or at the time of the shooting that indicated insanity," continued the Boston alienist. "I base my conclusion partly upon the testimony of social workers and partly because of the fact that she retained certain letters Dr. Zimmerman had written her. She saved them for future use.

"Another factor was that she shot him while he was entering an automobile where there was another woman—a woman she had heard Dr. Zimmerman was going to marry. It was the act of a woman who believed that if she couldn't have him she didn't want anyone else to have him."

"She is not a victim of manic depressive insanity," added Dr. Briggs. "She is mentally alert, bright and keen and is able to resume her place in human society."

Under cross-examination he elaborated on his reasons for believing the shooting was the act of a jealous, emotional woman. He said the fact that Dr. Zimmerman had refused to see her, that she saw another woman's picture on his bureau, that when the doctor was growing cold toward her she told other persons of their relations and the operations, all led him to the conclusion he had made.

The examination of the Boston alienist by Attorney McKechnie, counsel for the defence, was marked by friction throughout. Attorney McKechnie asked

Love Letters Versus Sanity at Trial

Springfield, May 25.—Is a woman who keeps letters from her lover sane or insane?

This was the academic question threshed out today between Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, the Boston alienist, and Attorney William McKechnie, counsel for Jennie Zimmerman in the latter's trial on a charge of murder.

Dr. Briggs had stated his belief that Jennie was sane when she shot and killed Dr. Henry Zimmerman last August. Asked on what ground he based this belief, Dr. Briggs cited the fact that Jennie had saved letters from the young physician, letters which were later reproduced in court.

"Is it not a fact," asked the lawyer, "that all women keep letters from their lovers?"

"Not to one against them later," retorted Dr. Briggs.

"But is it not a fact that women keep them?" persisted Mr. McKechnie.

"It is not the act of an insane woman to keep such letters," said Dr. Briggs again.

"Nor of a sane man to write them, perhaps?" suggested the defendant's attorney. A titter ran around the court room. The court officer rapped sharply for order.

"What leads you to think that this girl kept the letters to use against Dr. Zimmerman?" pursued Mr. McKechnie.

"Because they were so used."

"And in forming your opinion, do you not take into consideration that they may have been so used by advice of counsel?"

Dr. Briggs did not take this point into consideration, he testified.

Mr. McKechnie proceeded to show that the prisoner had kept the letters, like any woman, because such letters were treasured; that she had not foreseen the tragedy, the consequences of which she is now facing; and that the letters were produced in court only when they became, through sequence of later events, important evidence in the case.

During this colloquy the prisoner sat silent and motionless in the iron cage, beside Miss Mahoney, the jail matron.

And what are these letters, called "love letters" because written by a man to the woman whom he promised to marry and later flouted? Those who had heard the letters read, in recent hearings, were stirred to pity when they recalled the meagre lines, almost devoid of tenderness, the curt, business-like messages written from a military camp in which the doctor asked the woman who loved him to procure money for his use, or admonished her coldly not to send him any more candy and cigarettes.

Poor things, these letters, but all that Jennie had; treasured because they were in his handwriting, and the best she had to treasure.

War, insane or insane to keep them? The jury will decide. The words of Hoover will help it in its knowledge.

"How long were you able to keep it a secret from Hoover?" asked Senator Reed.

"Not very long," Lucey responded.

Lucey was preceded by Walker W. Vick, a New York business man and campaign manager for Governor Edwards of New Jersey, and by John W. Beller, in charge of the Washington office of the Presidential campaign of Senator Robert L. Owen, Democrat, of Oklahoma.

Vick said the contributions thus far to the Edwards campaign amounted to $12,900, of which David F. Edwards, a brother, and Cornelius S. Edwards, a cousin, had given $3,800 and $3000, respectively. Beller said the Owens contributions up to date totalled $7,810.

Denial that the liquor interests are financing Governor Edwards' campaign was made by Vick.

"Governor Edwards is not a 'wet' candidate," Vick said. "He has not touched a drop of anything with alcohol in it in fifteen years. His issue is 'Personal Liberty.' He is a believer in a State's sovereignty and in the power of the people of a State to exercise their right of 'Personal Liberty.'" national organization were given as amounting to $10,613.76.

The rent of the New York headquarters was set down at $4,799 and the rent of its equipment at $985.50. Another item was that of unpaid bills amounting to $3,352.95.

The statement revealed the national organization relied on the telephone far more than the mails to boost Hoover's presidential aspirations. For telephone and telegraph the amounts spent were given as $6,528.12, that for postage and express $1267.06.

EVADES QUESTIONS.

Lucey described himself as chairman of the national organization. He said he was engaged in the oil drilling equipment business and was prominently identified with the former food administration at Washington. He evaded questions by Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, as to Hoover's British and other foreign interests and activities, and as to how much time Hoover had spent in this country.

Lucey stated the Hoover National Republican Club was formed by way of a woman with a love-letter knowledge.

BRYAN AT ODDS WITH WILSON

Commoner Opposes Mandate Over Armenia or Any Other Country

Washington, May 25.—"Any mandatory is impossible."

William Jennings Bryan, with this as his preface, today declared himself emphatically opposed to an American mandate over any country in general, Armenia in particular.

The Commoner took direct issue with President Wilson, thus still widening the gulf which has been growing between the two great leaders of the Democratic party for years.

The reasons for his absolute opposition to mandates, the Nebraskan sums up in four paragraphs:

"First," he said, "The one proposed for Armenia, if accepted, would involve us in an enormous expenditure at a time when war taxation is so grevious that Congress had difficulty in finding the money necessary to do justice to the men who served in the world war.

"Second, it would involve us in the politics of Europe and compel us to deal with implacable race hatreds.

"Third, it would involve us in the fierce commercial rivalry of the big nations.

"Fourth, worst of all, it would compel us to surrender a vital principle of democracy, namely, that all people are capable of self-government."

and forty. Each tells just what he or she does by real work to increase the wealth of the nation. Those that do not at work will be put to work.

Different from the usual civilized system that permits each to do as he pleases, allowing the parasite class of non-producers to grow until war comes, when the young are sent off to the game of killing.

It will be an interesting change from the days of ancient Greece, when the citizens of Athens boasted that they had nothing to do, always far in excess of the number of citizens doing the real work.

We are a long way from knowing what is really going to come from the Russian experiment.

BILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF FOOD FOUND HIDDEN IN CHICAGO

BIG SUGAR HOARD IN BOSTON

Officials of State and Nation in Determined Hunt to Get at Profiteers

One billion dollars' worth of food, including sugar, a gigantic cache hidden away in Chicago warehouses, has been discovered in that city, it was learned today.

This was the outstanding feature of a nation-wide drive against profiteers and food hoarders, directed particularly against sugar dealers, in which officials of State and nation are taking part.

Almost simultaneously with the discovery of the hoarding of enormous food supplies in Chicago, Arnim W. Riley, special assistant to Attorney-General Palmer, began a sweeping investigation in New York, designed to punish sugar dealers who violate the Lever Act, and to obtain a fair distribution of the sugar supply.

In the same connection, Attorney-General Allen has asked the Massachusetts State Board of Health to act on his bill to continue the power given him by war legislation to prosecute for illegal combinations in restraint of trade, illegal practices and profiteering.

PRICE STILL RUNS HIGH.

No charge has been detected in the price of sugar in Greater Boston as yet, although the Revere Sugar Refining Company, following the advance to 22½ cents a pound by the American Sugar Refining Company, announced that all its product had been taken and no prices would be quoted until the company had a fresh supply on hand.

At the same time, in order to secure information regarding the 25,000,000 pounds of sugar delivered at this port during the past week, Representative Gillen introduced a bill in the Legislature to empower the Commission on Necessaries of Life to act.

The Chicago discovery was made by reporters investigating the food situation, and the conservation of the estimate of a billion dollars' worth was vouched for by warehouse men. The storage warehouses, on the railroad tracks and in other secret places.

THE PROFITEERS' HOARD.

The following values on the hoarded food were given:

Sugar, $75,000,000; coffee, $100,000,000; eggs, $50,000,000; tea, $75,000,000; pork, frozen, pickled, $50,000,000; cheese, $25,000,000; beef, frozen, pickled, $50,000,000; canned goods, $50,000,000; milk, canned, $50,000,000; candy, $25,000,000; fresh fruits and vegetables, $50,000,000; lard substitutes, bacon, $30,000,000; rice, $50,000,000; nuts, $20,000,000; butter and poultry, $50,000,000; raising and dried fruits, $15,000,000; flour, $50,000,000; frozen chickens, turkeys and other fowls, $25,000,000; miscellaneous food stuffs, $200,000,000; total $1,000,000,000.

Under miscellaneous were included baking powder, venison, jam, mincemeat, peanuts, malted milk, relishes, prunes, flavoring extract, chocolate, cocoa, rolled oats, honey, coffee substitutes, cinnamon, figs and dates.

CAN'T DODGE LEVER ACT.

Sugar dealers, when confronted with proof that they have violated the Lever act, said Mr. Riley, invariably attempt to evade the responsibility by declaring that they were not aware that the war-time measure was no longer in force.

The Lever act, he said, is just as effective now as when it was first passed and attempts to escape violations will be fruitless on this plea.

The practice of selling sugar at replacement value instead of prices based on actual cost will be stopped, declared Mr. Riley today. Speculators have been re-selling sugar purchased as low as nine cents for prices prevailing on the market, realizing more than 100 per cent. profit in many instances.

Can This Man Win?

Lowden Acceptable to All Elements of His Party

The second article of the Boston American's unique review of the Republican presidential possibilities, dealing with Governor Lowden of Illinois follows:

By LOUIS I. EMERSON,
Chairman Lowden Campaign Committee.

Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois will be the Republican nominee for President. Why? Because he is the only one of the present candidates who is acceptable to all elements of his party. He is the logical nominee. He is progressive enough to suit Theodore Roosevelt and conservative enough to satisfy those who believe the country should have a sane executive. He comes from that portion of the country which furnishes Republican majorities. He is satisfactory to the East, pleases the West and is acceptable to the South, which he understands and where he has large interests.

Was Only Executive to Reduce Taxes During War

Lowden is the man. There will be no dark horse nominated in this convention. The talk of a dark horse is pure convention bunk, and is meant for that purpose. Only one dark horse has been nominated by the Republicans in forty years. This year the people of the country want to know what the candidate stands for, what he has done and who he is, and an appearance he makes before the people. Why is he the best man? Will he stand fire? Will a grilling campaign bring him and the party into disrepute and endanger its success?

Lowden has stood a six months campaign. He showed himself 100 per cent. American when patriots were needed. A great State required a Governor with sand and courage in the nation's perilous hours. Lowden was there and not once did he waver. The war had not begun before the people of Illinois realized there was a man at the helm of the State and that this man and the State would measure up to the proud record of the great Commonwealth.

In the months that followed the ship of state sailed steadily. The guiding hand of the master sent it safely into the harbor. So determined was he that men began to talk of him for President. He has spoken to the people in many States. They like him. They regard him as sane and progressive. They know him to be one executive. He has put Illinois in the forefront. It is the only State where during the war period and the prevalence of high prices, taxes have been reduced. He sent them down from 99 to 66 cents on the $100 valuation. By establishing a real budget system he has placed Illinois on a solid business basis.

Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

Is a Clean Fighter, Has a Sound Platform

His campaign for the presidency has been clean and without acrimony. When entering the campaign he said: "I would rather be defeated for the nomination than climb to the presidency at the expense of another man's reputation. He has never said a word against any of the candidates or permitted any of his literature to contain a word that might be construed to be a reflection upon one. From the beginning he has urged that the success of the party this year is more important to the country than that I should be president.

"His campaign has been constructive and the Republican party is in better position wherever he has spoken than it was before.

Lowden's nomination will strengthen the forces of clean and efficient government. Lowden's policies mean lessens reduced expenses of government, lower taxes, a firm independent foreign policy in the protection of Americans abroad, and sound domestic relations.

His Nomination Assures Victory to Party

Lowden's nomination assures victory in November, a restoration of confidence in the country four years, the establishment of a solid foundation for industrial peace, agricultural development and the speeding up of business which is fast succumbing to strangulation and confusion.

SUFFRAGE PLEA BY DE VALERA

Important to Ireland That Women of U. S. Get Vote, Says Provisional President

Washington, May 25.—Irish leaders are appealing to members of the Democratic minority who are of Irish freedom. It is important to Ireland that the women of the United States should be enfranchised, declared de Valera of the Irish Republic, designed here today on the eve of leaving his reported visit to Wilmington, Del., he said:

"Several members of the opposition are warm supporters of the Irish cause and it was suggested to me that I should call them personally. I thought that in weighing the pros and cons in their minds they might not have considered how the suffrage of women would affect an interest which as Americans they had close at heart—that is, America's attitude towards Ireland in the question of recognition.

"It seemed obvious to me that the majority of the women were likely to be favorable to Ireland's freedom, for ideals are more to women than men and as women are more anxious that wars should cease, they would naturally support measures tending to end war, measures such as support the people of the self-determination. All this I tried to impress on the legislators to Delaware who have Ireland's freedom at heart.

"I have found the women of America warm supporters of Ireland's cause. On many occasions I have found them more courageous than the men."

There is scant hope of Delaware's ratifying the suffrage amendment, suffragists here admitted today. If a vote is taken in the lower House of the Legislature on Thursday indications point to defeat.

Kept Wedding Secret for Six Months

Salem, May 25.—Friends of the young people received with surprise today news of the marriage of Miss Marie Linehan, daughter of John Linehan of Beverly Farms, a wealthy contractor of the North Shore, and James F. Ingraham, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ingraham of Peabody. They were married at Portsmouth, N. H., November 15, 1919, but kept the marriage a secret. Both are popular among the younger social set of the North Shore. The bridegroom was formerly captain of the hockey team at Andover Academy. During the war he was a member of the Marine Corps. He is a member of the Homestead Golf Club of Danvers. His father is a member of the Governor's Council, and a well known leather man of Peabody.

ARREST PASTOR IN $50,000 CASE

Detectives Locate Rev. Stephen Plaza of Manchester, N. H., in New York

Manchester, N. H., May 25.—Sheriff O'Dowd was informed today by Assistant Superintendent Harry J. Murray of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency that Rev. Stephen Plaza, pastor of a Polish church, who fled a week ago following the discovery of an alleged $50,000 shortage in his accounts, is under arrest.

He was located in New York by agents of the detective bureau.

The clergyman was being watched there by a lawyer in the parish house during the time the accounts of the church were being examined. For five years there had been a growing breach between the pastor and his parishioners and with it the suspicion that the finances of the church, which he handled in their entirety, were not being properly cared for.

During the progress of the audit into the church books the discovery was made that all was not well. On May 13 the committee sought to question the pastor with regard to their findings. To their surprise he had fled the city. Then it was that a warrant charging him with the embezzlement of $50,000 was sworn out.

The first word from him was from Newark, N. J. He wrote three letters, one of them was to the keeper from whom he escaped and to whom he apologized for fleeing. In a letter to County Solicitor O'Connor he said that he fled because he had received several threatening letters.

With the receipt of these letters Pinkerton operatives were sent to Newark. They traced him from that city into New York and then after several days found him in Harlem. Sheriff O'Dowd will send for him at once.

Illinois' Governor Made Good as a War Executive

TENANTS STRIKE IN RENT WAR

Subsequently at Hearing Before Board Lie Is Passed on Several Occasions

A battle between tenants and landlords, in which a tenants' strike was utilized and alleged threats to split heads were made, was described to the Mayor's Rent and Housing Committee at No. 1 Beacon street, today. Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Feinstein, owners of property at Nos. 20 and 22 Magnolia street and Nos. 265 and 267 Magnolia street, Roxbury, and eight of their eighteen tenants appeared before the committee.

The lie was passed on several occasions, epithets were hurled and the confusion became so great that Herbert E. Ellis of the committee frequently called for order.

The tenants declared that the apartments were out of repair, and infested with vermin, while the Feinsteins asserted that the houses were malicious-ly damaged by the tenants. Mr. Feinstein told the committee that the lives of himself and his family had been threatened, and that the tenants paraded around the neighborhood carrying placards bearing insulting inscriptions.

Asked if he did not wish to get along on friendly terms with his tenants, Mr. Feinstein replied that he would, if it was impossible. He said he wanted to get rid of them as he could not put up with them any longer.

The tenants were originally ordered out by May 1, but were given an extension to June 1 through the efforts of the committee.

ELEVADTED TO RUN HYDE PARK LINE

The city of Boston will be relieved from expending $200,000 on the Hyde Park trolley lines and the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway will be ordered to double-track the main line, it was announced by members of the committee on bills in third reading which was scheduled to report the bill in the House today.

Under the new bill, the Elevated will operate the lines at an annual rental of 7 per cent on about $225,000. The Eastern will spend $85,000 to double-track Hyde Park avenue to Cleary square.

Hyde Park riders will pay a 10 cent fare and the city of Boston will pay any deficit.

BILL FOR 2.75 BEER IN NEW YORK NOW A LAW

Albany, N. Y., May 25.—Governor Smith has signed the Walker bill legalizing the sale and manufacture in New York State of beer with a 2.75 per cent. alcoholic content.

Effectiveness of the law will depend upon the decision of the Supreme Court on the constitutionality of the national prohibition enforcement law.

The law signifies that beer can be drunk only on the premises of restaurants in first and second-class cities and then only with meals.

"L" MADE $150,187.95 PROFIT DURING APRIL

The report of the receipts and cost of operation of the Boston Elevated for the month of April shows a net profit of $150,187.95 for the month. In April, however, there was still a net deficit of $511,076.26 to be overcome. The largest items included in the receipts were $2,780,584.49 from fares and $25,127.41 from advertising by cars, on transfers and privileges in stations. Transportation expenses, including wages of car employes and power house expenses, took up $674,360.41 of the amount listed under "cost of service."

ITALIAN AMBASSADOR COMING TO HUB JUNE 14

Baron Camillo D'Avezzana, Italian ambassador at Washington, has accepted the invitation of the Boston Chamber of Commerce to be its guest at a dinner to be held June 14. This dinner will be in the nature of a reception of the contingent to commercial and civic life on the part of the Boston business men. It is expected that several hundred of these business men will be present and assist in the reception to the ambassador.

GENERAL WOOD BEFORE WEST VIRGINIA VOTERS

Charlestown, W. Va., May 25.—The fight between United States Senator Howard Sutherland, a native son, and Major-General Leonard Wood for West Virginia's delegates to the National Republican Convention and the struggle for the Republican nomination for Governor were of principal interest to the voters in today's primaries. The other candidates for the Presidential nomination have kept out of the State.

WIFE ACCUSES MISS MOLLER

Dancer Who Made Broadway Gasp Named in Rich Woman's Divorce Case

New York, May 25.—Miss Helen Moller, the Grecian dancer whose economy of draperies caused New York audiences to gasp on numerous occasions, was named in the divorce action of Mrs. Edna W. Poole before Supreme Court Justice Tompkins, in Rockland County. An interlocutory decree in favor of Mrs. Poole was ordered.

Mrs. Poole charged that Miss Moller had often been introduced as the wife of Robert Alfred Poole, formerly of New York and Mount Kisco. A number of exhibits were introduced to indicate that her husband and the dancer had been very friendly.

One of these was a photograph showing Miss Moller in her dancing costume. On the back there was a short note from the young woman saying that she was going to dance in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel for a war charity.

Testimony was also given that Poole and the dancer had apartments within the last seven years at No. 743 Fifth avenue and at No. 272 Park avenue, also that they had been together in Great Neck, L. I.

Mrs. Ethel Jall, a companion of Miss Moller's, testified of the associations between Miss Moller and the defendant.

It was while Miss Moller was conducting a studio in Great Neck that she met Mr. Poole, according to the testimony.

The Pooles were married in London, England, in 1908. Poole is now in Monte Carlo and service of the action was by publication.

Miss Moller often declared that she had danced from watching the prairie dogs of her native State as they skipped about in the moonlight.

Wholesale Cotton Dealers Losing Thousands of Orders as Demand Lessens

New York, May 25.—Wholesale cotton dealers are losing thousands of orders through cancellation because of the success of the "wear your old clothes" campaign.

This condition and the fear it has struck into the hearts of the wholesalers was reflected by the action of 111 of the biggest cotton converts in the city, which have started a drive to hold jobbers and retailers to their contracts despite the falling off in the demand.

At a meeting at the headquarters of the cotton men in Broadway strong resolutions were adopted urging the trade to use every legal means to compel their customers to accept and pay for goods ordered.

Similar action had already been taken by the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers and the Silk Association of America. Both organizations have opened bureaus of contracts to enable their members to force their goods into the hands of jobbers who want to evade contracts and save themselves financial losses.

There is no doubt that the desperate efforts of jobbers at present prices to wriggle out of contracts is due to the determination of the people to buy only what they need, declared Secretary Samuel Fischer of the cotton men admitted.

Several jobbers another also admitted that the number of cancellations was alarming and that wholesalers were frightened as a result.

None of the cotton wholesalers will admit that the ultimate result of the campaign against high prices will be lower prices.

RAILWAY CLERKS GIVE DANCE TOMORROW NIGHT

The annual May Day and dance given by the Boston Lodge, 118, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, will be held in K. of C. Hall, Highland avenue, Somerville, tomorrow evening. Barron's jazz orchestra will furnish music. Arrangements are in charge of H. J. Sweeney with Farrell Brennock, D. B. Blake, James Powers, A. F. Morgan, C. Morris and President B. P. Corbishley. About seventy-five members of the lodge responded to the call in the war and the proceeds of the dance will be used to give them a banquet at the American House in the near future.

ANTHRACITE MINERS FAVOR WILSON BOARD

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 25.—Anthracite miners who are in convention here, discussed whether to accept the maximum proposals of the operators, the plan of President Wilson for an arbitration committee of three, or a strike. None of the three courses is favored, but it is said that the scale committee favors acceptance of a commission to be appointed by the President, with the agreement that the committee will have its way.

MEN GAIN IN WAR, SAYS WILSON

New Heroic Quality as Result of Great Conflict, He Tells Legion

By International News Service.

New York, May 25.—"A new heroic quality has come to the American manhood" out of the war, says President Wilson in a Memorial Day message to the American Legion, which will be published in the American Legion Weekly, May 28. President Wilson's message follows:

"We approach the annual celebration of Memorial Day with our hearts filled with tender and grateful memories of those who have given their lives for the great cause. The day has by custom been consecrated to the country's heroic dead.

"It is observed by those who were comrades in arms and who shared with the well remembered dead the experiences, the hardships, the perils and the glory of war; it is celebrated by the people of the country generally who take it as an annual occasion to renew their loyalty to their country and to draw fresh inspiration for the tasks of peace from the memory of the sacrifices which were made so freely in times of war.

"The day is, therefore, filled with both memories of the past and inspiration for the future. It gathers the traditions of what we have done in the past and we may have courage for what we have to do.

"Progress moves like an army. It has its days of training and preparation, its days of conflict and its days of vindication. It has its campfires and its memories.

"To you who were soldiers of America in the great war, I send affectionate greetings. What your arms have done for liberty in France, your spirits will continue to do for justice at home. Great experience makes great men and out of the tragedy of this war a new, heroic quality has come to American manhood. You represent it, and your country's affection for what you have already done is only equalled by its confident hope of the manly part you are still to play."

TWO MOBS FAIL TO FIND NEGRO SLAYER

Alexandria, Va., May 25.—A mob of more than 200 masked men stormed the Arlington County Jail in search of W. H. Turner, the negro who is said to have confessed that he killed Morgan Moore early Sunday. Moore was shot to death on a country road here while defending his fiancee, Miss Pearl Clarke, private secretary to Representative Harry L. Gordon.

Having compelled Jailer Z. O. Kines to open the door, the mob searched the building but failed to find Turner. Later another mob, larger than the first, descended upon the jail and searched in vain.

The negro had been removed from Arlington County.

SAYS SUPPORT OF BONUS PLAN IS DISGRACEFUL

Poor Pay Hampering Mail Service Here

One of the most serious situations confronting the United States today is the impairment of the wonderful postal system brought about by underpayment of postal employes.

So seriously hampered is the Postal Department, that complaints for inefficiency are daily pouring into Washington from men and women in every walk of life.

Many cities of the country has the impairment of the postal service been more severely felt by the business world than by Boston. A loyal body of thousands of men who are employees of the system, have started to improve the service from within. Fifteen months they have been fighting for reforms that they claim would put the postal system on an efficient basis. A good employee, they say, is a satisfied employee. They maintain that no employee can be underpaid and efficient.

Consequently, they are urging upon the postal authorities at Washington and upon Congress, especially, that their wages be reasonably increased to meet the excessive demands of the high cost of living.

RAISING POVERTY.

"Men are continually resigning from regular positions as postal employes and re-engaging their services as substitutes. Because the substitutes receive higher pay than men who have been years in the service."

This was the statement of John A. Kelly, president of Local No. 10, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, in reviewing conditions in the service. "One of the other grievances, among many, were emphasized by Mr. Kelly" the men have had no increase in salary since 1907, with the exception of a small bonus; and except those longest in the service have their pay docked if they are absent for a day whether the cause be sickness or death of loved ones.

"Fifteen months ago postoffice conditions, with special reference to wages of employes, were made the subject of congressional investigation," said Mr. Kelly. "A joint committee was appointed, but that is the last that has been heard of the matter except for authentic information that there is little hope of a report from the present Congress adjourning unless pressure is brought to bear. If this business is not settled before 1921, it will mean little less than absolute poverty for men who have devoted their whole career to the service of Uncle Sam.

"At least 75 per cent. of the clerks in the Boston Postoffice are at present working evenings or nights.

"No one will take the civil service examinations today, because there is no advancement. Before the war 3,400 men took a single examination. At the last examination only 110 applied. Does that show what is happening to the service or not?"

Prominent officials of the postal employes' organizations declare that in Boston, O. K. is impossible to obtain postal help, with the consequence that calls have been sent throughout the country, offering positions there without examination.

"DOCKED" ON DEATH BED.

An instance is given of a man who had been in the postal service for seventy years, upholding the best traditions of the work. Stricken with illness, he was "docked" as he lay on his death-bed, and no allowance for his family or for burial expenses was given.

A postal clerk was formerly obliged to familiarize himself with a 1,700-section volume containing laws and regulations; but now, so meagre have the wages become, the postal authorities are glad to take men unversed in the work of the department.

Old times are asking: "Did ever such a preposterous situation exist? We have gone through a long and intensive system of training and study, memorizing facts by the thousands, intricate methods of classification, banking, insurance and commercial business.

GET LESS THAN LABORER.

"All this preparation was accomplished at our own expense and in our own time. And after qualifying as experts, we are paid smaller wages than the man who comes without experience or a record in the postal service. We are paid, in fact, smaller wages than the day laborer. After twenty-four years' service with the Postoffice Department one man was receiving approximately $4 a day.

The maximum salary of a carrier does not reach $32 a week. It makes no difference whether he has been in the postal service for a day or a year. For this stipend he carries burdens which often reach eighty pounds, seventy times a day, in every kind of weather. He is obliged to make his trips in schedule time, fair or shine.

Sugar Poisons Human Race, Says Dennett

"The sugar shortage is a blessing to humanity. Sugar is a greater curse to the world than war, rum and tobacco combined, and its continued use threatens the extinction of the human race."

This is the conviction of Dr. H. E. Dennett of Brighton, who after fifty years of practical dentistry declares that sugar is the most deadly and injurious poison known to man.

"I would like to see every 'sweet tooth' of the human race," Dr. Dennett continued. "When I see little children innocently sucking their lollipops and ice cream cones, it makes me tremble for the future. If parents realized the effect of these poisonous glucose combinations, they would be readily convinced that cigarettes with a solution of Paris green."

The particular harm lies in the condition of acidity produced by the unassimilated sugar, Dr. Dennett declared.

"Sugar turns to vinegar; vinegar is an acid which destroys the lime in the teeth and causes decay. This decay spreads throughout the system and causes such diseases as acidosis, one of the worst phase of these self-inflicted diseases is that they are unnecessary.

"Of course, the human system needs sugar, but not in the commercialized form. Fresh or dried fruits contain all the sugar which their natures demand to satisfy the craving for sweets which everyone naturally feels.

"Throw away candy and ice cream cones, and give the children watermelons, figs, dates and oranges. The human race would be supremely benefited by such a substitution.

"The present sugar situation is a blessing, but it would be a greater blessing if they were quick to secure any sugar. Sugar should not only be boycotted; it should be eliminated."

PETITION TO CONGRESS

To the Congress of the United States:

I appeal to the members of Congress to use their influence in securing the passage of legislation which will provide a suitable, living wage for the employes of the postal service.

I ask that some action be taken to prevent the continued and increasing number of resignations of highly-trained, capable and efficient employes, who are forced to seek other lines of business, with a consequent impairment of the postal service.

I appeal to Congress for immediate action, on the part of two hundred and fifty thousand postal employes, in order to save the postal service from complete collapse.

OBREGON FEARS VILLA

By GERALD BRANDON.

(Staff Correspondent of Universal Service, who has just returned from an extended tour of Mexico.)

New York, May 25.—Mistrust will militate against a possible understanding between Villa and the Obregonista leaders.

Villa, who has all along been doubtful of the good faith of the revolutionists, had pinned his only hopes of a reconciliation on his expected personal interview with General Elias Calles, whom he characterized as his friend and an honest man. The Obregonista junta has decided that Calles is too valuable a man to be permitted to place himself in Villa's power and has informed the guerilla that he must go to Chihuahua city for the peace conference.

This Villa has refused to do and has instead sent three of his staff officers to talk for him. However, Villa has not invested his commissioners with power to act for him. He does not believe in dealing through subordinates and is only sparring for time.

VILLA'S FORCES GROWING.

Although Villa's weeks of inactivity has suited the purposes of the obregonistas since it has given them time to operate their troop trains without hindrance, the guerilla chieftain has benefitted still more by it for he has never ceased to recruit men, to gather stores and to squeeze money from those of his enemies whose purses still contain gold.

He has also revived in the dwellers of the towns in northern Chihuahua that confidence in his invincibility which was shaken by his defeat in 1915 and the more recent curtailment of his field of action by the "defensa social" militia organized and commanded by Gen. Rodriguez.

It is greatly to be regretted that Villa will not lay down his arms, for his doing so would be of inestimable assistance towards the immediate clearing up of the Mexican situation, not only from a military standpoint but also from the financial, social and international aspects.

COULD REDUCE ARMY.

With the entire country at peace, Obregon would have no excuse for maintaining the army at a war footing and this army constitutes the gravest menace. With a satisfactory militia (this item has for the past five years comprised seventy-five per cent. of the entire budget) the new Mexican government could immediately begin to cover its arrears of interest in indebtedness.

While the rural districts unhampered by bandits, farmers would again be willing to plant crops with a probability of being able to reap them. With the return to normal conditions, the new government would find it easier to secure recognition by the United States and the other world powers.

As can be seen, Villa is an extremely important factor in the situation. Villa realizes this fact, he also underestimates his importance, and will "carry on" unless his terms are accepted unreservedly.

VILLA A SERIOUS PROBLEM.

This is impossible. If he is permitted to enter the councils of the new government he will bring upon all the foreign odium which he has earned through his lawlessness and thirst for blood.

If he is allowed to retire unmolested to the mountains with 1,000 armed men to await the election, he will become a serious menace to whatever government emanated from the elections.

There is but one possible solution. The elimination of Pancho Villa. And yet Villa cannot very well be expected to agree to this.

He sincerely believes that his fight is a holy crusade, one which will ultimately result in the emancipation of the peon. When remonstrated with because of his bloody methods, he naively points to the history of the French Revolution, which was washed by still more blood than which, nevertheless, ushered the democratic era in the entire world.

DEATH OR EXILE.

A member of the Obregonista junta, with whom I spoke on my return from Villa's camp, admitted to me that if the revolutionist laid down his arms he would be killed in a very short time. There was one alternative, he said, and that was for Villa to leave Mexico. Half-jokingly he asked me if I would be able to take Villa on a tour of the world. It would be made much worth my while financially and I would be rendering an immense service to Europe.

A trip of this sort would not only preserve the illustrious bandit but would serve to educate Villa and perhaps make him a valuable citizen. It appeared that all the money in the world would not tempt me to spend several months in Villa's company for he is an uncertain individual, especially on his off days.

There are mornings when Villa arises from sleep with his eyes bloodshot and his hair bristling on end. At such times even his closest friends and staff officers keep out of his way, for he is unreasoning and reckless of human life.

On May 9 I reached his camp shortly after sunrise, and to my surprise was not allowed to see the "Jefe." On one excuse or another I was kept practically a prisoner in Guzmanillo. Trille and Pinonez, who did not permit me to leave for a moment, the Judas but whom was the G. H. Q. at Las Delicias. My captors were extremely attentive to me, but were ambiguous in reply to my questions as to when I could see the general.

That night I was taken to Rosales, a town some ten miles away, and was put in the custody of the municipal president until morning.

I did not understand the reason for the delay and it worried me greatly. I wondered if I were going to be held for ransom. The municipal president, a man of some education, knew me through my writings, and was a most hospitable host. I told him of the day's experience and asked him to communicate with my family in case anything happened.

KEPT OUT OF DANGER.

"Trille and Pinonez must like you," he said. "They went to all that trouble for your sake. Today the general had one of his bad-chief spells and he would probably have had you hanged had he seen you. This morning, he hanged two men at San Pablo Beoqui, ten miles from here, and ransomed two others for 15,000 and 20,000 pesos respectively."

I silently apologized to Trille for my unspoken thoughts of him and trusted that Villa would not be blood-shot on the following morning.

My luck held. Villa awakened in an excellent humor and as soon as he heard that I was in camp received me with a great show of consideration. We were together for some nine hours, during which time we spoke on every possible subject. He also permitted me to photograph his men and himself. I managed to snap fifty exposures. Villa shares that one characteristic with his fair enemy, Carranza—he is rather fond of having his picture taken.

This is the third of a series of articles by Mr. Brandon on Villa and his aims. The fourth article will appear in an early number of the Boston American.

ONLY PRESIDENT CAN STOP SALE OF SHIPS

Washington, May 25.—The Shipping Board is "authorized and directed" to sell the fleet of twenty-nine former German passenger liners, by the terms of the shipping bill which has passed both Houses of Congress. The measure now goes to conference, where there is little likelihood of its revision.

This sale, which William Randolph Hearst held up in the interests of the public by securing a permanent court injunction, will now undoubtedly be consummated.

President Wilson, who took title to these ex-German ships in the name of the United States in May, 1917, must now use his power of veto when the bill reaches him for his signature if the ships are to be saved.

ATTACK ONE-MAN MOVIE CENSORSHIP

By a vote of 20 to 15, the Senate overturned the report of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, which recommended that the bill to provide a State censor of motion pictures "ought not to pass." The bill was at once placed in the orders of the day. It is expected to be the subject of at least one more contest in the upper branch.

The bill was bitterly attacked and was as enthusiastically defended.

AN ADVANCED

Summer Sale

For Men, Women and Children

Prices Reduced 10 to 30%

FOR the first time in our history we have reduced the prices of our best and latest styles at the height of the season.

We are holding this sale for two reasons—

1st. Because of the backwardness of the season our merchandise has not moved as rapidly as we anticipated.

2nd. Large inventories in all lines of business have caused a stringency in the money market. We therefore deem it advisable to turn large inventories into cash and thus do our part toward relieving the credit structure of the country.

On account of the fact that these shoes will be sold without profit to us we request that all sales be made for cash.

FACE A SIGHT WITH PIMPLES

Itched Fiercely. Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

"By eating too much candy-and, sweets, little pimples came all over my face. They itched fiercely and almost burned my face off. After a while they started to fester and I was a sight to be seen. At night I could not sleep, the itching was so bad.

"I used many different kinds of Ointment but to no avail. Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. They stopped the itching and burning greatly, and now I am all healed." (Signed) V. C. Thompson, 5 Riverside Pl., Cambridge, Mass.

Improve your skin by daily use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—Advertisement.

GORDON'S OLYMPIAS—John Emerson and Anita Loos, whose efforts for the last six months have been confined to providing Constance Talmadge the brilliant First National star, with unusual screen material, have completed adaptation in "In Search of a Sinner," which was seen last evening at Gordon's Olympia and Gordon's Boulevard Square Olympia. "The Bottom of the World" is an added attraction this week at Gordon's theatres, which details the recent thrilling South Polar expedition of Sir Ernest Shackleton, the famous British explorer. The Olympia Weekly, a new comedy and five big acts of vaudeville complete the bill.

Cal·o·cide FOOT REMEDY

For the Thin and Blood-less!

The thin and bloodless, with pale cheeks, white lips and frail angular physique, of this community have been much interested in the reports of physicians and others concerning the phenomenal effect of the treatment for increasing the red and white corpuscles of the blood, thus adding color and weight with its accompanying vigor, to the distorted system. A pair of from 10 to 30 pounds is not at all unusual where the treatment is regularly used for several months, while the color improves almost from the beginning. Most good anothecaries supply it in the form of triple-strength hypophosphites tablets, put up in sealed packets with directions for home use. Its acting, aside from stimulation and absorption of the food eaten, is very promptly.—Advertisement.

"OUIJA BOARD" IS LURID MELODRAMA

By FRED J. McISAAC, Dramatic Editor.

How on earth could they dramatize the Ouija Board?" I wondered when I heard of the play by that name which was coming to the Plymouth. Well, it came, and I saw it, and they didn't.

The piece by Crane Wilbur on exhibition at the Plymouth, might better be called "The Double Murder" than "The Ouija Board," because there are two murders in it and the ouija only gets a bow after a small bit in the first act.

Wilbur's play is a tense and rather lurid melodrama in which knives, pistol shots and ghosts play important parts. The piece possesses a couple of the most diabolical villains seen on the stage since Theo Kremer used to send the girl through the saw mill in the brave days of old.

If I seem to speak bitterly, it is because they use my favorite song, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," on a sort of phonograph infernal machine which fires a pistol and murders a man on the last note. I'll never play that record again without ducking the bullet.

If Ouija doesn't come in for much it, the play bearing its name it is full of spirits. Mr. Wilbur realizes that some of the people don't believe in ghosts and others do. Therefore he makes the medium a pure faker, but injects a couple of real messages which would seem to indicate that Sir Oliver Lodge is not entirely loony, after all.

To retail the plot of a surprise melodrama, like this is a mean trick on the actors. Suffice it that after a slow first act there is something weird, harrowing, thrilling or supernatural going on all the time.

Crane Wilbur, himself, plays the sceptical police detective, and does it very well.

Howard Long as the medium, was impressive and striking and managed a very unusual and thrilling death scene.

Edward Ellis, as an escaped convict who stumbled into the occult, supplied the only comedy. Steward E. Wilson, as a youthful drug addict and the deserter of "Believe Me" referred to above, did a very effective job.

Regina Wallace, Ruth Hammond, William Ingersol and George Gaul are in the cast.

PARK THEATRE— "The Sea Wolf," Jack London's rugged story of adventure, has been made into a stirring photoplay and was shown at the Park Theatre yesterday. Spectacular scenes, such as the ramming of a ferryboat by a whaling schooner in a fog in San Francisco Bay, the beaching of the schooner in a gale, and the violent battles between "Wolf" and his crew stand out with extreme vividness. Noah Beery gives an excellent performance as "Wolf." Tom Forman and Mabel Julienne Scott do good work also, and Raymond Hatton draws laughter as the sad-eyed "sea-cook." The picture is a Paramount Artcraft and a George Melford production.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE— One has but to witness a performance of "A Prince There Was," which is being presented this week by the Somerville players at the Somerville Theatre, to realize that it is a typical George M. Cohan comedy in every sense of the word. Th dialogue is bright and snappy and the action is swift and never lags.

FRIGANZA IS BIG HIT OF KEITH BILL

Trixie Friganza, chickest of chick vaudeville stars, is headliner at Keith's this week. She leads in a travesty entitled "The Surprise Party," and is about as good as anything Trixie has appeared in. She is well supported.

Maud Muller and company are pleasantly heard and considerably seen in a new style musical and topical revue. Frank J. Conroy (the redoubtable) is back again and better than ever in "Spirits of 1920," an ingegrating subtlety, in which he is assisted by Irving O'Hay.

Charles and Henry Rigoletto, assisted by the Swanson sisters, make a big figure on the bill. They impart a quaint comedy touch, with a dash of nonsense.

Stella Tracey and Carl McBride have some catchy songs and Jack McLallen and May Carson appear in a "roller" comedy.

Lillian Herlein, assisted by Earl Thurstensen, are likeable songsters. Charles McGood makes good with his quintet of equilibrists, and Laura and Billy Dreyer, last but not least, have a snappy up-to-the-minute dance review.

There are the customary topics and kinogrums to complete a good bill.

Coming Events

WILBUR THEATRE—Law Fields will present an original musical comedy, "The Poor Little Ritz Girl," at the Wilbur Theatre, beginning next Friday evening. This offering, a feature of which is the famous "Hits" beauty chorus of Broadway favorites, is said to present a new idea in a novel manner.

COLONIAL THEATRE—Lou Tellegen, the highly admired romantic actor, will begin a limited engagement at the Colonial Theatre next Monday, May 31, in a new comedy by Augustus Thomas, "Underneath the Roman." A cast of notable players will be seen in support.

MAJESTIC THEATRE — Doris Keane, in the film version of Edward Sheldon's famous play "Romance," which played a continuous engagement of three years in London, over a year in New York, and was seen here for a short period at the Wilbur Theatre, begins an engagement at the Majestic Theatre next Monday. Two performances of this celebrated drama will be given daily.

CENTRAL SQUARE THEATRE—Alice Lake, the beautiful young star of "Shore Acres," the picturization of the world-famous drama by James A. Herne, the feature attraction at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre. There is also a fine bill of five vaudeville acts.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Having established an enviable reputation for presenting high class novelty entertainment, Messrs. Jacobs and Jermon are regarded as among the leaders in burlesque. Their "Golden Crook Company," all this week at Waldron's Casino, is one of the most elaborate and complete productions on tour. An important feature of the program is the introduction of the "Ballet of the Allied Nations," one of the most pretentious novelties ever presented with an attraction of this kind.

GAIETY THEATRE—The attraction at the Gaiety is Jean Bedini's musical revue, "Peek-A-Boo," which has just completed a record-breaking run of four months at the Columbia Theatre in New York. "Peek-A-Boo" comes direct from its Broadway success with the same company, the same production and above all the same gingery chorus that made all New York sit up and take notice. In the cast are Frankie James, Bobby Clark, Joseph and Harry Kelso, May Myers, Rita Drew and the "Peek-A-Boo" Trio.

UPHAMS CORNER STRAND—Ciara Kimball Young, in "The Forbidden Woman," wears a greater variety of gowns and dresses than in any other film play in which she has appeared. This remarkable film was shown last evening at the Uphams Corner Strand for the first time in Dorchester and it will also be shown today and Wednesday.

Plays That Remain

COLONIAL THEATRE—The concluding week of the Ziegfeld Follies' engagement at the Colonial Theatre began last evening. After next Saturday night this thirteenth edition of the famous representative revues will pass into history.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—"Listen Lester" is now in its final week at Selwyn' Park Square Theatre and but seven more performances remain. Those who have not witnessed this musical comedy sensation, which John Cort has produced in an elaborate manner, can ill afford to let the few remaining opportunities go by.

SHUBERT THEATRE—That saucy musical farce, from the producing hand of A. H. Woods, "I'll Say She Does," started on its second week at the Shubert Theatre last evening.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—George M. Cohan's new comedy production, "Genius and the Crowd," with Renavent, the brilliant young star, began the second week of its engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre last evening.

TREMONT THEATRE—The third week of George M. Cohan's musical comedy production "Mary" began at the Tremont Theatre last evening, emphasizing the fact that this attraction is a real sensation in point of popularity.

ARLINGTON THEATRE—"Susan Lenox," David Graham Phillips' tale of the fall and rise of an unusual girl, ably put into play form by George V. Hobart, began its fifth successful week at the Arlington Theatre last evening.

TREMONT TEMPLE—The thrilling episodes of the dismission of James Oliver Curwood's famous best seller, "The River's End," have made Tremont Temple, where this remarkable picture is being shown a mecca for amusement seekers who love excitement. Marshall Neilan directed this unusual screen offering, which is drawing capacity audiences.

HONEST ALL THROUGH

FOR MEN AND BOYS

The Country Club—In All Leathers—One of Many Models

"I demand for myself absolute comfort in shoes which are at the same time smart looking, well fitting and long wearing, and I can't expect any other man to demand less."

Chas. O'Emerson

MANY years ago I decided that the best way to protect my customers against excessive profits was to stamp a fair and square retail price on the soles of my store shoes, based on the actual factory cost of labor and materials.

By enlarging my production from year to year I have beenable to keep this selling price remarkably low in spite of the greatly increased cost of all materials and labor.

I have always felt that it was better policy to make many shoes at a low profit than a few shoes at a larger profit.

The fact that I have increased my sales ten times in the past six years is proof positive that the general public appreciate this policy.

Our shoes cannot be marked up at one season of the year just to hold so called "Marked Down Sales" at another season. I never ask you to pay more for a shoe than it is actually worth.

Come into our store and put this to the test. Inspect our styles and prices—and if you aren't convinced that you are getting more for your money in Emerson Shoes than in any others, I will not expect or want you to buy.

Miss Alice Sherbourne, Belmont, defeated Miss Glenna Collett, Metacomet, 1 up.

By ROBERT E. HARLOW

The defeat of Miss Glenna Collett of Metacomet by Miss Alice Sherburne of Belmont furnished a surprise in today's play in the women's gold championship on the links of the Belmont Golf Club.

It was believed that the Providence golfer would be one of those to battle for the title to the very last. Miss Sherbourne, however, had plans of her own about the championship. She played much steadier golf than her opponent and took the match by a score of one up.

Miss Collett's tee shots were poor and these were largely responsible for her losing the match.

The other matches were also replete with interest and furnished plenty of thrills for the gallery.

Four Tied for Lead in Qualifying Round

No player had the honor of leading the field in the qualifying round as four were tied at 98. They were Miss Gordon, Mrs. Rowley, Miss M. Curtis and Miss F. C. Osgood. Miss Osgood withdrew from the match play. All of the low handicap players succeeded in winning a place in the championship division. Those who failed to qualify continued play in eights for special prizes.

A majority of the strongest Boston players were in the upper half of the draw. In order to avoid the long automobile ride between Providence and Boston each day, the Providence players are living at the Belmont Spring Club house.

Sixty-seven took part in the qualifying round. Nothing worse than 103 won a place in the first flight. Because of this Miss J. W. Peters of the Wannamoisett was just crowded out. Miss Peters scored 104. When she came to the seventeenth tee it seemed as if 104 would surely qualify, and 105 would tie for a place. Miss Peters had to get a 5 and a 6 for a 105. She did better, getting a 4 at the first and a 4 at the second, these two holes having played twice because the seventh and eighth were too wet for use.

Mrs. Daley, the present champion, is playing well, and will make a strong effort to retain the title.

PRINCETON NINE WINS SERIES FROM HARVARD

Princeton clinched its annual baseball series with Harvard by a 5 to 0 win on Soldiers field. It was the second Tiger victory. Warburton and Felton pitched good ball, the latter fanning eleven men, but being given weaker support. Princeton bunched up the old ball game in two very fierce innings on two errors, a base on balls, a sacrifice and two fielder's choices.

Athlete Over Age, E. H. S. Loses Games

All games won by the Boston English High School nine this season have been forfeited. Captain Mike Spillane, shortstop on the Light and Dark Blue team, has been declared over age and ineligible to represent the school.

In the records at English High Spillane was represented as being nineteen years of age. His real age has been established at twenty-one. Head Master William Snow of the English High School first discovered the break in the rules in a letter from Coach Edward Sherlock of the High School of Commerce, in the latter was a birth certificate copy which settled Spillane's birth as 1899.

The games with the High School of Commerce, Boston Latin, Mechanic Arts High and Roxbury High have all been forfeited.

BRAVES OUT TO WIN LAST GAME

Fillingim Faces Eller in Pitching Duel at Redland in Getaway Game

Cincinnati, May 25.—The Braves, when they went into the final game at Redland today, believed that they had an excellent chance to finish the western trip as they began it, with a victory. Behind the pitching of Dana Fillingim, who showed considerable on his last start against the Pirates, even though he went down to defeat, their confidence seemed to be justified.

Just before he quit the playing field for the grandstand, Manager Pat Moran nominated Eller of world's series fame, to work against the Boston clan, at the same time issuing strict injunctions to Captain Chalbert to yank "Hod" quickly if the Braves showed any tendency to become unduly familiar with his slants.

Although the Braves lost the third game 4 to 2 they were fighting hard all the way against one of the best pitchers in the country and never quit trying. They played airtight baseball to grab their two runs in the fourth inning off Reuther but he was so good that was all they could get. It was Reuther's seventh win of the season and also his sixth straight victory.

Boxing Made Legal in New York

Albany, N. Y., May 25.—Fifteen-round boxing bouts to a decision became legal in New York State when Governor Smith signed the Walker-Boxing Bill. Decisions are to be rendered by two judges, the referee only making the award when there is disagreement between the former. The law provides for the establishment of a State athletic commission, which is to have entire charge of the sport.

COLD WEATHER FAVORS SOX

St. Louis Browns Find Climate Not Suited to Their Brand of Baseball

By NICK FLATLEY.

The St. Louis Browns, with a flock of heavy artillery, once more attacked the Red Sox defences at Fenway Park today. The first assault was repulsed with terrible slaughter, and there's more than an even chance that the efforts of the next few afternoons will be similarly ruined.

The Red Sox had their first shot at the Browns and proceeded to show them the reason of the Boston closeness to the top of the league ladder.

The invaders did more hitting than the local performers, but they also did much more running, and there you have the story of an afternoon that brought the East a little closer to the pinnacle.

Neither Bullet J. Bush nor young Mister Vangilder of the hostiles was hit to any great extent, as the figures go. But Joseph was thumped a bit the harder. That made no difference in the placing of the laurels, as the Boston hits broke through at the critical moments, while the Brown thumps were gobbled when most dangerous.

The Sox were apparently lucky to get away, but in baseball the luck always goes to the team that's forcing the issue, and the Sox sure are doing that these days.

They have hammered themselves into a complacent mood, where they sit and wait for the other fellow to slip, and most of the time the obliging bird does it.

There were moments yesterday when the future looked bleak for B. J. Bush, but he was bolstered past a couple of them, and then his gang got the Browns wobbling and rescued four runs from an inning that had one real double in it, one lucky one, and three St. Louis errors. That ended the strain, and the team heretofore associated with the Sox sure are doing that these days.

There's plenty of power in the St. Louis outfit, but there isn't the class or the experience back of it that is needed to worry the Fenway flock at this stage of the game. The Browns wasted their thumps and the Sox didn't, and there you are.

IS YOUR BLOOD STARVING FOR WANT OF IRON?

Iron Is Red Blood Food—It Helps Put Roses Into the Cheeks of Women and Give Strength and Energy to Men. Why Nuxated Iron so Quickly Builds Up Weak, Nervous, Run-Down People.

Thousands of men and women are impairing their constitutions, laying themselves open to illness and literally losing their grip on health, simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron. Pale cheeks, dull eyes, weak backs, a lack of vitality and mental wrestling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it literally rob him of the virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable.

Iron is absolutely essential to enable your blood to transform the food you eat into muscular tissue and brain. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life-sustaining oxygen enters the body. Without iron there is no strength, vitality or endurance. In the words of one of our well-known American physicians: "Unless, in my opinion, lack of iron in the blood does not necessarily mean you do not have enough blood, but it means your blood is not of the right kind. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded people there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. No matter what other tonics or iron remedies you have used without success, you are not only certain to be delighted with the way you feel after the first few days' trial, but in many cases it will prove a revelation in the way of speedily building up the health and strength. Nuxated Iron is now supplied by all druggists under the positive guarantee that if it does not give the user at least 100 per cent more strength and endurance in two weeks' time, the money will be refunded. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Billie Murray Takes Up Shoemaking

Billy Murray of Natick, captain of Harvard's undefeated football eleven of last Fall, has entered the employ of a Salem shoe factory, with the intention of learning the business and possibly seeking a means to lower the cost of those necessary adjuncts to the habiliments of the civilized races. Billy intends to learn the business from the ground up, which is a very good plan in studying the shoe business. At present he is residing at the Salem Y. M. C. A.

BOUT FOR TITLE BOXERS' PRIZE

Winner of the Friedman-Martin Clash May Get Chance With Pete Herman

By JACK CONWAY.

Abe Friedman and Terry Martin will battle for the right to meet Pete Herman in a bout for the world's championship when they clash in a twelve-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight.

Johnny Cuddy, matchmaker of the Atlas Club of Lawrence, has Herman's signature to a contract and will pit him against the winner of this evening's tussle in a contest to be staged the latter part of June.

This is not the only prize the boxers will battle for. When the match was made it was agreed that the winner would get sixty per cent. of the purse while the remainder should go to the vanquished boxer. This means torrid fighting.

Martin Will Try to Score With Knockout

Martin made the trip here today from Diamond Hill. He was confident he would gain the honors at Mechanics Building.

"I feel stronger than I ever have during my career," said the battling person. "I intend to force the issue from the tap of the bell in the opening round. If I can score with some solid punches to the body, I feel sure it will come through with a knockout."

It will be third meeting between Martin and Friedman. The Providence boxer has two decisions to his credit and is out to make it three in a row.

Fighter Against Boxer in Armory Ring

It will be the old story of a fighter against a boxer. Martin is a rushing, two-handed warrior, who doesn't seem to tire no matter how fast the milling may be. He can punch hard with each hand, and usually takes the top out of his opponent in five or six rounds.

Friedman, on the other hand, is the scientific, calculating type of boxer. He moves around the ring with precision and grace. His left hand is a beauty, while there is also much power behind his right.

It is a hard fight to dope. As many fans like Friedman's chances as there are individuals who are picking Martin to win. It is a case of writing your own ticket.

Young Chakras of Manchester, N. H., and Jack O'Leary of Cambridge will meet in the semi-final of ten rounds. Jo Chee Brannan of Charlestown and Newman Reagan of Brockton will box eight frames, while Young Kelley of South Boston and Pat Mulkern of Roxbury are down to travel the six-round distance.

TRAVERS AND DANFORTH IN TIE FOR LOW GROSS

Members of the Bay State Automobile Association and a number of their friends enjoyed a day of golf at the Commonwealth Country Club. The competition for members James A. Travers and Miss Danforth were tied for low gross with 80. F. E. Skeetop also had a gross score of 80, but his handcap gave him the low net prize, which he took. J. Donavan had second net with 73 and George Crittendon and W. E. Dermoody were tied for third with 80.

There was a low gross and net prize for players who are not members of the Association. Jesse Guilford won the low gross with a 75 and S. A. Moody and A. C. Brisman were tied for the low net with 82-81-74 each. George Bowden, the Commonwealth Club professional was allowed to start in the tournament and he finished with a 75 and was awarded a special prize for having the best gross score of the day. About $175 was raised for the Salvation Army at the tournament.

THE YOUNG DIANA

Story of Tense Mystery in Which Heroine Holds Key to Youth

By Marie Corelli

SHE threw him such a smile, and such a glance of arrowy brilliancy that his head whirled.

"Poor child, poor child!" he mumbled, taking her daintily-gloved hand and patting it. "Far gone!—far gone, indeed! And so beautiful, too!—so very beautiful!" Here he kissed the hand he had grasped. "There, there! You are almost normal! Be quite good! Here we are at the door—now, are you sure you have a car? Shall I come with you?"

Diana drew her hand away from her father's hold, and her laugh, silvery sweet, rang out in a little peal of mirth.

"No, Pa! Fond as you are of the ladies, you cannot make love to your own daughter! The Prayer Book forbids! Besides, a mad girl is not fit for your little gallantries! You poor dear! One scar has aged you rather badly! Aren't you a leetle old for Miss Preston?"

A quick flush overspread James Polydore's already ruddy countenance, and he blinked his eyes in a special "manner" which he was accustomed to use when feigning great moral rectitude. More than ever convinced that his visitor was insane, he continued to talk on in blandly soothing accents.

"Ah, I see your car! And no one with you! Dear, dear! I wish I could escort you to—to wherever you are going——"

"No, you don't—not just now!" said Diana, laughing. "You're too scared! But perhaps another time——"

Questioned Chauffeur

She swung lightly away from him and moved with her floating grace of step along the drive to the carriage gate, where the car waited. The driver jumped down and opened the door for her. She sprang in, while James Polydore, leaning after her, sought the chauffeur by the coat sleeve.

"I don't think this young lady knows where she is going," he said, confidentially. "Where did you find her?"

The chauffeur stared.

"She's at our hotel," he answered—"and I'm driving her back there."

Here Diana put her head out of the window—her fair face radiant with smiles.

"You see, it's all right!" she said. "Don't bother about me! You know the——Hotel looking over the Park? Well, I'm there just now, but not for long!"

"No, not for long!" thought the bewildered James Polydore. "You'll be put in a 'home' for mental cases if you haven't run away from one already!" And it was with a great sense of relief that he watched the chauffeur "wind up" and preparing to move off—the lunatic would have no chance to "bite" him, as his wife had suggested! But how beautiful she was! For the life of him he could not forbear treating her to one of his "conquering" smiles.

"Good-bye, dear child!" he said. "Take care of yourself! Be quite good! I—I will come and see you at your——Hotel!"

Diana laughed again.

"I'm sure you will! Why, Pa dear, you won't be able to keep away! The antique Mrs. Rose-Mercier, whom you so much admire, is not the only beautiful woman in London! Do remember that! Ta-ta!"

The car moved rapidly off, leaving James Polydore in a chaotic condition of mind. He was, of course, absolutely convinced that the girl who called herself his daughter Diana was the victim of a crazy, but low or no, when she became thus obsessed was a mystery to him. He re-entered his house to struggle with the wordy reproaches of his better-half, and to talk the matter over privately with the "companion secretary." Lucy Preston, whose attention he thought more safely assured by a love-affair which apparently obliged him to put his arm round her waist and indulge in sundry other agreeable endearments. But the exquisite beauty of the "escaped lunatic" haunted him, and he made up his mind to see her again at all costs, mad or sane, and make searching inquiries concerning her.

Diana herself, speeding back to her hotel, realized afresh the immensity of the solitude into which her new existence plunged her. Her own father and mother did not recognize her—her most trusted friend, Sonny Lansing, refused to acknowledge her identity—well!—she was indeed "born again"—born of strange elements in which things human played no part, and she must needs accept the position. The saving grace of it all was that she felt no emotion—neither sadness nor loss—neither fear nor shame—she was, or she felt herself to be a strange personality, apart from what is understood as human life, yet conscious of a life superior to that of humanity. If a ray of light hovering above a world of darkness could be imagined as an entity, a being, such would most accurately have described her curious individuality.

Banker Called

That same evening her banker called upon her, bringing with him a pleasant motherly-looking lady whom he introduced as Mrs. Beresford, a widow, whose straitened circumstance made her very anxious to obtain some position of trust, with an adequate salary. Her agreeable and kindly manners, gentle voice, and undeniable good breeding impressed Diana at once in her favor—and then and there a settlement between them was effected, much to the relief and satisfaction of the worthy banker, who, without any hesitation, said that he "could not rest till he felt sure Miss May was under good protection and care"—at which she laughed a little but expressed her gratitude as prettily as any "girl" might be expected to do.

She invited him and her newly-engaged chaperone to dine with her, and they all three went down to the hotel dining room together, where, of course, Diana's amazing beauty made her the observed of all observers. Especially did Captain the Honorable Reginald Cleeve, seated at a table with an alarmingly stout wife and two equally alarmingly plain daughters, stare openly and admiringly at the fair enchantress with the wonderful sea-blue eyes and dazzling complexion, and deeply did he ruminate in his mind as to how he could best approach her, and ask whether she happened to be any relative to the "Diana May" he had once known. He made an opportunity after dinner, when she passed through the lounge hall with her companions, and paused for a moment to look at the "Program of Entertainments in London" displayed for the information of visitors.

"Pray excuse me!" he said—"I chanced to hear your name—may I ask——"

"Yes, indeed!" said Diana, cheerfully. "I am!—quite a near relative! Do come and see me tomorrow, will you? I have often heard of Captain Cleeve!—and his dear wife!—and his sweet girls! Yes!—do come! Mrs. Beresford and I will be so pleased!"

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1930, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

REAL love is the ability to glorify a man without defying him—and to understand him without underestimating him.

A man keeps his desk so full of trash, his pockets so full of junk, and his heart so full of worthless little sentiments, that he never can find the one thing he really wants when he wants it.

What is that morbid fascination which makes a man go out into the garden every morning to look at the place where his radishes have been?

The same irresistible impulse, no doubt, that makes a woman go downtown to look at the hats she can't afford to buy.

To be popular, all in the world you need to remember is that every woman loves to be looked at.

A spinster is apt to be self-opinionated. It requires a few years of married life for a woman to discover that her opinions are of no consequence whatever. Heigh-ho!

A confirmed bachelor spends thirty years of his life in fighting to escape matrimony—and the remaining twenty in apologetically explaining WHY. Then he elopes with a blonde telephone girl.

Long engagements are the hookworm of love. When two people insist on monopolizing each other for several years, without marrying, love just naturally dozes off and dies of ennui.

A man's idea of "fact" is to dry a woman's tears, by telling her that her nose is getting red.

It is always cherry-blossom time in the heart of a woman who is loved and always April in the heart of a man who is IN love.

Somehow this "higher love" that men are so fond of extolling always ends in the same spot on a girl's lips as the lighter love.

Profit by Your Loneliness

By Beatrice Fairfax

THERE'S no way out of it. You simply can't get away from it. Everyone is lonely, and people have to find a sort of "companionship" in that fact and to get a whimsical "misery loves company" satisfaction out of the fact that they aren't alone in their loneliness.

At least 5 per cent. of the letters which come to me every day are from boys and girls (men and women, too) who long for friendship—for companionship, for someone who will "understand." Loneliness exists out on the farm twelve miles from anywhere, and it also thrives in the midst of the thronging humanity. It comes less from not knowing folks in general than it does from not knowing the one "right" person.

When statisticians are making up lists of the why and wherefore of failing in love, they don't lay enough stress on loneliness. Everyone longs for someone to whom he can talk frankly and freely—someone to whom he can confide his hopes and aspirations and fears, someone who will feel that his interest are all important—and someone who will console him in grief and share his joys. And not having that "someone" is loneliness.

Of course, with our conscious minds we all want to be happy here and now. We hate to be left too much to ourselves. Most of us hate to go to the movies alone night after night—or always to run out to lunch without a companion. It looks queer, unpopular, unattractive. No one wants to be set down as a "pill." Every one is self-conscious and dreads being eyed askance by his mates.

What Loneliness Does

This fear is part and parcel of the thing we call "loneliness." It drives folks who don't meet the individuals they'd like to know to the sad old device of putting up with what they can get. It accounts for the unfortunate straying of many a sweet, wholesome boy or girl into bad company.

Being alone seems a tragedy to so many of us. * * * But, as a matter of fact, being alone offers most of life's opportunities.

Big things are created in solitude. A clever newspaper man may dash off a fine article in the midst of a busy, thronging "city room." But a great book is written in cloistered quiet. All of us must get away by ourselves and search our souls if we want to do anything worth while.

The man who has a big job on at the office may stay after hours and get it out in the quiet of the empty rooms where he can do the day's routine, but where he can't concentrate sufficiently to produce the bigger and better things he's after. Or he may dope it out while walking through the park—or in the solitude of his room—or even while riding in the subway. But he can't dig into the innermost recesses of his mind unless he actually invites "loneliness."

Using Your Time

With congenial companions at hand and all sorts of things to woo human nature to the lure of amusing itself and having a good time, work doesn't get done.

Loneliness means a solitude of spirit which isn't easy to bear. But it offers the opportunity to work toward the big things each of us wants from life. It gives time to read and think. It means growth. It opens the doors to progress.

Suppose you never have anything to do evenings. On Sundays. Dreadful times those for youth to be alone when all the world seems happily arranged in groups of two. Of course at least half the world is invisible because sulking in its hall bedroom grieving over its "unique" loneliness.

How about using two of the evenings at classes at the "Y," or some of the many other places which offer youth a chance to obtain some of the world's vast store of wisdom? How about a gymnasium? Or an art school? Or some University Extension lectures? Or a course in good reading? Or sewing? Of studying up for the job two jumps ahead of you?

Why not use your loneliness? Instead of grieving over it, figure that it offers opportunity for growth and progress. Life is short and crowded with duties. There are so many chances crowding about folks that they'd be dizzy if they realised them all. And whenever you find yourself with "lonely" hours on your hands, don't.

When a Girl Marries

Ann Lisle Writes Interestingly of the Trials and Slight Jealousies of a Bride

By Ann Lisle

DROPPING her, Mrs. Varden turned to me, clasp unsheathed, mouth purring:

"How nicely you and Jim keep from being bored. Let's see—it used to be Tom Mason and his cousin, the one I hear has just jilted her young man. Oh—I forget—he's some kin of yours, isn't he? Well, even if he lost Evvy's fortune, I think he's lucky to escape your husband's cast-off sweetheart."

While Mrs. Varden was speaking Virginia stared at me steadily with an air of understanding, and then strangely enough some careless words Jim had spoken a few evenings before flashed across her mind.

"You'll give those poor kids an evening of happiness in spite of her. One evening—and maybe a few more. There are ways of circumventing even Virginia.

May Have Been Jim

Which of us thought of it first, I don't know. I'm not sure whether or not Jim had it in mind when he said, "There are ways of circumventing even Virginia."

But when I saw how Mrs. Varden's sneers were adding to Virginia's prejudice against Neal, those words of Jim's came back to me and gave me what I felt was an inspiration.

If I had put it away in the back of my brain for a while, and had taken it out when I was all alone and thought over it carefully, perhaps I would have weighed it and found it wanting. But I didn't weigh it.

When we got home from our evening on the roof with Carl Booth and Daisy Condon, Jim was in a jumpy, irritable mood nearly approaching that state known as a grouch. I was suddenly too tired and dejected to get any fun out of his jealousy of Carl Booth. I didn't want to discuss it. So I hauled "The Idea" out and offered it to Jim. Hauled it out suddenly and without weighing it, because Mrs. Varden's catliness and Jim's quarrel with Virginia and my own indescribable feelings due to coming again in touch with my old world, had made my brain whirl like a carousel.

"Jim!" I began abruptly. "Just what did you mean the other evening when you said that there are ways of circumventing Virginia?"

"I don't remember saying just that, Anne. What's the big idea?"

"I thought you had—the idea." I replied, smiling guilelessly.

"What's eating you, young lady? You have something on your mind," said Jim, looking at his watch impatiently. "She'll never consent to Phoebe's marrying Neal," I said smoothly.

Why Not Elope?

"I've told you that, haven't I? Why do you want to start treating it as a great discovery now? Did she say anything in the dressing room? Get your goat by snubbing that field-daisy of yours?" asked Jim, whirling around to smile at me knowingly.

"No. She merely took me for granted with the same Harrison serenity and superiority you're showing now. Seeming to indicate that I couldn't possibly have any viewpoint but her own. And it struck me——"

I hesitated, and Jim said sarcastically:

"A lot of things have struck you today. Your old interest in Booth, for instance——"

I interrupted in turn, whirling into the heart of things and well beyond Carl Booth.

"What struck me was this—if Virginia will never consent to letting Phoebe and Neal make their dreams come true, why shouldn't we just take matters in hand ourselves, Virginia? Maybe you're never really meant to defy her. But I'm sure Neal has. And Phoebe, too. I fancy Jim, why shouldn't they elope?"

"Elope!" repeated Jim colorlessly. "Elope!" he repeated distastefully.

"Well, wasn't that your idea all along—when you said there were ways of circumventing Virginia?"

Jim whirled on me as angrily as if it were I who had defied him.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Jones

Copyright, 1930, by The Ledger Syndicate.

JONES

VARIATIONS—Johns, Johnson, Johnston, Joynes.

RACIAL ORIGIN—British.

SOURCE—A given name.

SOME was has given Jonah, of biblical whale fame, credit for being the first Jones. Such, however, is not the case. It is derived from John, which originally was a Hebrew name, Jehohanan, meaning "grace of God." Jonah, or Jonas, is an entirely different name, and is the old Hebrew word for "dove."

It was natural, perhaps, that in the period when family names were being formed, so many persons should have adopted a given name that was so popular. Since there were more Johns in the world than Peters and Williams, it was natural that there were more "John's sons." So when some one called Peter, John's son" had a son of his own, and the latter grew up and decided he would take his grandfather's distinctive name rather than his father's, he unconsciously started a new custom, and became a Johnson, or a Jonson, or a Jonesou (for they were not so particular about spelling in medieaval England). And in the course of time many of these "John" families shortened their names by dropping off the final "on." Others didn't. The spelling Johnston, of course, is simply a misspelling which, perpetuated through several hundred years, has become legitimate.

Indeed, such changes in the spelling of the "John" names are much to be desired if family names are to perform the real function for which they became and continue necessary, that of differentiating one individual from another. With more "John" names in the world than any other, there is really no way in which a man can better lose his identity than by calling himself John Jones—unless, of course, he is able to advertise it in some connection, making a virtue of necessity.

KING ARTHUR FLOUR

Anecdotes of the Famous

Apropos of early passions, a story was recently told by the father of the little boy who provided "the laugh." He was trying to find out whether his young hopeful had any special leanings, and asked him what he wanted to be when he grew up. The boy thought a long time, and then shook his head. "I dunno!" he said.

"Think again," urged his father. "If you could choose, what would you rather grow up into when you're a man?"

Suddenly the boy's face lightened. "I know," he said. "Charlie Chaplin!"

General Pershing's visit to New York was the occasion of great enthusiasm, and he was given a tremendous reception. He is admittedly one of the most popular men in military circles today. What the French think of him was shown by the proposal, put forward almost immediately after he left French soil, to present the American government with a special train which Pershing used in France as a souvenir of America's part in the war.

Some little while before his return the American general received a big offer from a theatrical manager in New York to appear in the halls and give short talks about the war. He smiled, and put the letter aside; but the New York manager was persistent and meant to do business if he could. A couple of weeks later the manager telegraphed:

"Have you entertained my proposition?"

Pershing's reply ran:

"No, but your proposition has entertained me."

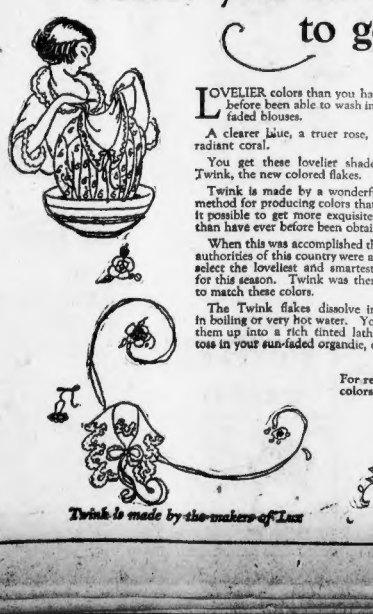
Twink
Washes and dyes at the same time
10c

Colors you have been trying to get and could not



LOVELIER colors than you have ever before been able to wash into your faded blouses.

A clearer blue, a truer rose, a more radiant coral.

Twink is made by a wonderful new method for producing colors that makes it possible to get more exquisite shades than have ever before been obtained.

When this was accomplished the color authorities of this country were asked to select the loveliest and smartest colors for this season. Twink was then made to match these colors.

The Twink flakes dissolve instantly in boiling or very hot water. You whip them up into a rich tinted lather, and toss in your sun-faded organdie, or your yellowed georgette. Swish it about and squeeze the suds gently through the fabric several times. In a twinkling your organdie has its original soft lavender again. Your yellowed georgette is a charming copenhagen.

Twink colors turn out clear and even every time, with no streaks or spots. They are so fast you can wash your blouse several times before you need Twink it again. Twink will not injure any fabric that water alone will not harm.

Get today several packages of Twink in the newest blouse shades and just follow the surprisingly easy directions that come with the package.

Your druggist, the department stores, and the 5 & 10 cent stores have Twink. Lever Brothers Co., Cambridge, Mass.

For restoring color and for giving these new exquisite colors Twink is as perfect as Lux is for fine laundering.

Flesh	Baby Blue!	Light Green
Pink	Copenhagen	Dark Green
Coral	Turquoise	Light Gray
Peach	Navy Blue	Taupe
Old Rose	Yellow	Buque
Bright Red	Lavender	Dark Brown
Dark Red	Purple	Black

You use some of the Twink colors like Lux. Others require boiling water and suds. Read directions both outside and inside the package before using.

She Won

The race for the last word was getting hot. Hubby and wife were running neck and neck.

"You did!" he snapped.

"I didn't!" she retorted.

"You did!"

"I did not!"

The pace was slowing.

"Well," flashed hubby, "one of us two is a very rankle liar. But there is one thing which prevents me saying which one."

"Modesty, I presume!" retorted wife.

BAZAAR TO AID POOR IN ERIN

Midnight raiding in Ireland and imprisonment of defenseless men and women without trial by the British military continues, according to reports received by officials of the Boston Gaelic School, at their quarters, No. 2389 Washington street, Roxbury.

Heads of families are spirited away and all efforts to ascertain their whereabouts are without avail.

Because of the sufferings of many Irish families and the dire need of food supplies and clothing in many parts of Ireland the Gaelic School will hold a bazaar to raise funds in Dudley Hall, Dudley and Washington streets, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Irish organizations throughout the city are asked to help out by sending representatives to purchase articles on any of the three evenings. The committee in charge announces that the proceeds will be applied to the fund for the relief of the families of the victim of British militarism and tyranny in Ireland, of which Miss O'Rahilly of Dublin is treasurer. Miss O'Rahilly is a sister of the O'Rahilly who sacrificed his life and property for Ireland in the rising of 1916.

The Knights and Ladies of Lough Erne (County Fermanagh Association) will hold their annual costume party, May festival and carnival, Thursday evening in Paine Memorial Hall, No. 9 Appleton street. Patriotic exercises will be a feature.

Irish and kindred societies in Brockton will turn out tonight to greet Judge James E. Deery, national president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who is scheduled to speak in one of the large halls in that city in behalf of the membership drive of the order.

Announcement is made by the National Bureau of Information of the Friends of Irish Freedom at Washington, D. C., that plans for the Irish race convention to be held in Montreal, commencing June 26, are now being perfected by the Irish-Canadian National League.

Really Removes Roots of Superfluous Hair

(Philadelphia, the New Woman-Worker)

Without doubt the greatest thing yet discovered for hair-disfigured womankind is the wonderful phelactine method. It has none of the disadvantages of electrolysis or depilatories and, best of all, it removes the hairs entire, roots and all. It does this instantly, leaving the skin as smooth and soft that no one can tell the user was ever the possessor of a superfluous or other hairy growth.

Phelactine is non-odorous, non-irritating, and so harmless a child could use it without any ill-effect. A stick of this remarkable substance, accompanied by simple instructions, can be obtained at any druggists. What women would not be delighted after seeing these ugly hairs disappear—looking the rejoice with her own eyes. Advertisement.

This Leaves the Skin Free From Hairy Growths

Toilet Talks

A simple method for completely removing every trace of hair or fuzz is here given. This is painless, and usually a single treatment will banish even stubborn growths. To remove hairs, make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment be sure you get delatone. —Advertisement.

TEACHER FIGHT STIRS TOWN

Sisters Dismissed at Westfield Refuse to Return on Probation

Westfield, May 25—Superintendent of Schools Chester D. Stiles has offered to let Misses Hazel and Ella Hyde, dismissed school teachers, remain at their duties in the Prospect Hill school until Christmas on trial if they so desire. The offer has been refused by the teachers, who say they are willing to abide by the results of a public hearing.

It was learned that the two sisters had arrived in their class rooms slightly late on certain occasions and that this was one of the specifications for remedy set forth in the letter from the school committee to the Hyde sisters a year ago.

Prominent citizens are becoming interested in the case and have sought conferences with school officials.

School officials maintain that several more teachers will find themselves looking for another position if they do not "pick up" in their work. As a result of the drastic steps taken by the school committee in the Hyde case, several of the teachers have already made arrangements to attend Summer school sessions this year.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Forethought as Well as Money Needed to Keep Up Streets

Where the highway authorities not only of Boston, but of many cities and States, seem to be falling down in their efforts at providing good streets and roads is in their apparent neglect of changed traffic conditions.

A few years ago street traffic proceeded at, perhaps, six to ten miles an hour. Now it goes at fifteen to twenty miles an hour.

Then a five-ton load was a rarity and it moved at, perhaps, three miles an hour.

Now a five-ton load is commonplace and it moves at twelve to fifteen miles an hour.

The introduction and constantly extending use of the automobile has brought the difference.

That is one reason why Mayor Peters' comparison of his street building record with the records of his predecessors fell so flat. He apparently left out of his comparisons the obviously important element of changed traffic conditions.

Another element that the Mayor apparently disregards is that the wheels on which the old small loads moved so slowly simply rolled along. The wheels on which the new big loads spin along are driven by great power.

It isn't money alone we need for better streets. We need more forethought, better planning, broader vision.

Other cities are building streets that are standing up under the new traffic conditions. At night one can tell the limits of Boston and Brookline and West Roxbury and Newton, for instance, by the feel of the road under the wheels.

The Mayor has a tough job. He has our sympathy and can have our aid on any sound and comprehensive program. Paraphrasing the time honored dictum about resuming specie payments, the way to have good streets is to have them.

Another New York Paper Goes to Three Cents

Recently when the New York Evening Journal went to three cents per copy, we reprinted on this page an editorial from that paper giving the reasons for the increase in price.

The New York Globe is now three cents a copy, and herewith we reprint an editorial from that paper, giving their reasons for increasing the price:

At two cents, the price today, the sum of all the pennies of its readers pays for considerably less than two-thirds of the paper used. The advertisers pay the balance and all other costs.

This is fair neither to the advertiser nor the reader. The advertiser carries more than his fair share of the burden. The reader gets less news and comment and features than readers of a first rate newspaper are entitled to. Because the demand for paper is greater than the supply, no newspaper that commands popular support can get enough paper to supply all that it can use if it prints as many copies as it can sell.

The very great advance in the cost of labor and everything entering into making a newspaper, tends further to increase the domination of the advertising contents of the two-cent newspapers today.

The time has come in the judgment of the Globe to restore more equitable proportions. Instead of continuing the struggle against unequal odds to give them a bare three cents' worth for two cents, it intends hereafter to give them more than three cents' worth for three cents.

Don'ts for Automobilists

The Rhode Island Company, which operates the electric cars in Rhode Island, has made up a list of don'ts for the drivers of automobiles.

This list, which we print herewith, we recommend to the attention of every man and woman who drives a car of any sort:

DON'TS.

Don't turn from the right-hand side of a street to the left on to a car track unless you are sure that no car is behind you within striking distance.

Don't cross behind a car on track so close that you cannot see a distance of at least 100 feet in the direction from which a car on the opposite track may be approaching.

Don't come out of a side street so fast that you cannot stop if a car is approaching from either your right or your left on the street into which you are entering. This is the manner in which most accidents happen. No matter how blind the corner is, you can have your machine under such control that it can be stopped before it reaches the track, if necessary.

Don't leave a curb and turn on to a car track unless you are sure that there is no car back of you. If there is a car within 100 feet, let it pass you and then turn out. Remember that the electric car can't dodge.

Don't pass a car standing at an intersecting car track. Your view is obstructed and you may be struck by a car on the intersecting track.

Don't attempt to pass between two cars going in opposite directions, even though it appears that you have plenty of time.

On the Just and the Unjust

One of the interesting but annoying features of Boston life is the way the rain water gutters and leaders on business buildings are allowed to plug up or to rot so that they precipitate cascades of water all over the hurrying pedestrians below.

It adds undeniably to the picturesqueness of the downtown streets, these bridal veil falls, but not to the comfort of good citizens.

Owners and tenants should look to these things, and if they do not then the city authorities should take the matter in hand.

Andy's Conversion

By S. E. KISER

ANDREW PLUNKETT'S quit believing that the country's bound to bust;
Last Fall he was rather doubtful and inclined to lose his trust.
"All my life," he said, "I've struggled; I've been law-abiding, too,
Doing nothing that I wouldn't think my neighbors ought to do,
And what's come of all my efforts? Here I am as poor as dirt;
Taxed to death and hardly able to afford an extra shirt!
"IT appears to me the people, if they'd only learn to think,
Couldn't fail to see the nation's getting mighty near the brink;
We have let the politicians and the profiteers proceed
Till a healthy revolution seems to be the thing we need;
Where's the freedom that our fathers used to like to boast about?
It's as dead as Julius Caesar, and its ghost's gone up the spout.
"WHILE I'm not an agitator and have little taste for blood,
I can see that trouble's coming—there is bound to be a thud;
You can lift your hands in horror and get mad and say I'm 'red,'
But you'll see a big upheaval, and it isn't far ahead,
For the people are beginning to be wise enough to see
That it's nothing less than childish to pretend that we are free."
ANDY'S wife got word from Texas that her uncle there had died,
Leaving her ten thousand dollars—Andy's doubt is put aside.
They have just received the money; got it all in ready cash;
Talk to Andy if you're thinking that the country's gone to smash.
"All this scary talk is foolish," Andy said, the other day;
"Uncle Sam knows what he's doing, and he's on the job to stay!"

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—In the mornings as I've walked up Seventh avenue, New York, just below the hotel where you used to sojourn, I've noticed a cat that sits out in front of a grocery store. It is very placid, yet somehow it attracts attention, and sometimes as many as three or four persons walk up to it and scratch its back before continuing on their respective ways. The cat purrs contentment, and I fancy sometimes that those who have stopped to pet it look just a little more contented with life as they journey on.

Is the cat so placid because the H. C. L. matters not to one free of family ties, or is it just a matter of disposition? In our own human world, there's the case of Frank McGlynn, the actor who plays Lincoln in John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln" at the Cort Theatre. McGlynn has raised a family of six children, keeping his good nature all the time, and yet he never knew what success or a real salary was until he got this chance.

And the best of it all is that in spite of his success after "fifty fameless years," he is still placid and contented.

So perhaps it isn't a matter of how many mouths one has to feed in these H. C. L. days, but just a matter of disposition, after all.

Yours categorically, DAVID WALLACE.

MY DEAR Dave.
I'M MIGHTY glad.
TO GIVE you space.
TO SAY a word.
FOR FRANK McGlynn.
AND FOR the cat.
ALTHOUGH I know.
YOU USE the cat.
IN WRITING me.
BECAUSE YOU know.
THAT I like cats.
AND KNOWING this.
YOU BRING the cat.
TO STEAL my space.
FOR FRANK McGlynn.
BUT THAT'S all right.
AND IF it be.
THAT WORDS of yours.
OR WORDS of mine.
IN PRAISE of Frank.
MAY ADD a bit.
ONTO THE joy.
THAT MUST be his.
AND TO the pride.
THAT HIS six kids.
AND HIS good wife.
MUST FEEL in him.
THEN I am glad.
YOU FOUND the cat.
AND I'D be glad.
IF I could know.
THAT THROUGH the years.
THAT SHALL be his.
THERE'LL BE with him.
AS GREAT content.
AS YOU have found.
WHERE SITS the cat.
AND FOR the cat.
AND FOR McGlynn.
I GIVE my thanks.
THAT ONE may purr.
AND ONE may smile.
NO MATTER what.

I THANK you.

TOO MUCH ADVICE UPSETS HOME

By Winifred Black

THE baby is a year and a half old, as fat as butter, and it has blue eyes and brown hair like floss silk and dimples in its knuckles and a little crease where its head is joined to the neck, and nobody can help wanting to kiss that baby—not when the baby has on its best white frock and blue jacket, embroidered in white with scallops and blue booties and has a perfectly ridiculous ribbon bow of blue tied right around its hair—no, nobody!

The mother loves the baby so she doesn't know what to do, and her husband loves her and the baby, and you'd think they'd be perfectly happy.

They would, too, if people would let them alone and stop giving them advice about that baby.

But the people won't. Mother has her say, and all the aunts have theirs, and the cousins approve of this and disapprove of that, and all the in-laws come over and tell her what never, never to do for her own baby, unless she just wants to see it pine away and die, right before her eyes.

What shall she do about it? Well, now, I'll tell you, little mother. Why don't you and husband and the baby hurry up and get out into the country before Summer gets here?

You need it, and husband needs it, and baby needs it, and, while you're going, get just as far away from the relatives and the in-laws and the advisers as you can.

You and your husband and your baby will be all right when you get away by yourselves. Get away, as fast as you can.

If you can't go to the country, go somewhere else—to another part of town. Don't say why, but just go, and if they all come trooping to visit you anyhow, smile and smile. They won't come very long, if you move far enough, and when they begin to advise you about that baby, be awfully sweet and grateful and advise them, oh, so nicely, about some of their own affairs. Don't let them see what you mean by it—just turn the tables on them, that's all, and if they have any sense of humor or any sense of justice at all they'll laugh and let you alone.

And then you and husband and baby can have—oh, the nicest time in all the world, and make your own mistakes and learn your own lessons and quarrel about them, and make up again, and be natural and simple and real—as you were intended to be when you were born.

And that, it seems to me, will be rather nice.

To the Editor

Vacation on Farms

Editor Boston American:

Following is a suggestion that might be of some value for the farmers. We are well aware of the fact that farm labor is almost impossible to get, and of course no farm products means high food costs. Now there will be thousands of people that will be very soon thinking where they will go to spend their vacation. Why wouldn't it be a good idea to start a movement: "Why not spend your vacation on a farm? Good food, real milk, good air, etc.?" Why not let these vacationists have some exercise in the morning, say a few hours in the way of helping the farmers, and receive in pay their board and room and perhaps extra pay in potatoes, etc.? Thousands of people on farms, working four hours a day, means many thousand hours work gained.

Lodge for President

Editor Boston American:

After reading in the American an extract from Bottomley's "John Bull," I am more than ever convinced that our next President should be the man who understands best our foreign relations, and that man is Henry Cabot Lodge. I admire Senator Johnson, whose candidature is being supported by the American, and he is my second choice, but in the event of trouble with any section of Europe (which in my opinion is very likely) he would not be able to rally all the forces of these United States to the same extent that Henry Cabot Lodge would. Lodge may be regarded as old, but he showed remarkable vigor in the Senate. Our foreign problems are very very important. Let us get busy and nominate Lodge.

TRADITION MAY START FROM HAIL STORM

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE total eclipse of the moon early in the evening of May 2 seems to have attracted an unusual amount of public attention, and was the occasion of the birth of a new legend or at least of what would surely have become a legend if the event had occurred some hundreds of years ago.

Even in the present day, I shall be surprised if, in consequence of what happened in Connecticut during the obscuration of the moon in the earth's shadow, a permanent addition is not made to the extensive folk lore about lunar influences.

Just when the moon became fully buried in the shadow a sudden hailstorm burst in central Connecticut, and immediately the spectators drew the conclusion that the two coincident phenomena, the eclipse and the storm, were casually related.

The hailstones are said to have been of uncommon size, and the imagination required no aid in convincing some of the onlookers that a decided chill fell upon the earth as the moon's light was withdrawn and that this chill was the cause of the hail.

Such a line of reasoning, loose as it was, is natural. To the average mind there is nothing so resistless as coincidence. Let two extraordinary (or even merely unusual) things occur in striking juxtaposition and nine persons out of ten will associate them as cause and effect, or as both the effects of a common cause.

I have no doubt that this coincidence of an eclipse with a hailstorm will become, though its details will be forgotten, a lasting tradition in the literature of natural marvels. Age will strengthen it in proportion as the passage of time lengthens its roots and obscures their origin.

Not Exaggerated

That such an expectation is not exaggerated is proved by many historic examples. What but pure coincidence of this kind was the origin of the ancient belief in auspices? The appearance of birds in flight on this side or that or going in one direction or another interpreted as indications of the fate of a battle or a campaign, and thus governing the movements even of a Roman army, as well as the strategy of some of the greatest generals of antiquity—all that embodied in a great system of priestcraft (the institution of the augurs), can only have had its birth from some striking coincidence powerfully affecting a supersensitive imagination.

If some general, just before fighting a disastrous battle, happened to have his attention arrested by an extraordinary flight of crows crossing his path, or perhaps, more likely, if some superstitious soldiers in the ranks saw and talked about the incident, that would be all that was necessary in those days to set up a belief in an occult connection between the flight of ominous birds and the fate of battles.

There absolutely was no other ground than a forgotten coincidence for the superstition which held back the warlike Spartans from marching to aid the Athenians at Marathon until the moon had "filled out her circle"—that is, had reached the full phase.

It had, some time or other, happened that a Spartan army, setting out just before full moon, was defeated, and some imaginative person thereupon started the legend that it was unlucky for Spartans to march forth to war at such a time in the month.

Other Superstitions

But that kind of unreasoning logic has not disappeared from the world. Have you ever been tempted to try whether there might not be some virtue in the tradition that your hair will grow better if you have it cut before full moon, during the two weeks that she is "increasing," i. e., between the "new" and the "full" phase? I have known persons who had full faith in that superstition, and they were people moving in "educated" circles, too.

Many farmers plant certain seeds only during the "increase" of the moon. They think that the moon being on the up grade, so to speak, brings up the sprouts. This is really much worse than the case of the Yankees and the hail-bringing eclipse, for in the latter there was at least colorable argument of casual connection on account of the possible effect of the withdrawal of the moon's radiation.
